TYPEWRITERS JUST LOVE YOUR LETTERHEAD ON
WELDONMERE BOND

They really do, y'know. Take this old wreck of mine. Things look first class when I type on Weldonmere Bond.
Lots of reasons, of course. The Technical types say that, for opacity, bulk, rigidity, uniformity and performance, nothing can touch
Weldonmere Bond. Seems reasonable.
It is awfully good Bond. Do try it.

FIRST COURSE IN RUSSIAN PART I - PART II - PART III

For the traveller, businessman, teacher, or language-dilettante, First Course in Russian is a revealing experience.

The oral approach as used in Part I is simplified at first progressing to a more advanced approach in Parts II and III. In Part I the reader gains a solid background in grammar and a comprehensive spoken vocabulary of modern Russian.

Parts II and III range from Russian geography to collective farms and government, from education to sputniks. However, unity and high interest is achieved in each lesson by focusing attention on a single aspect of Russian life.

First Course in Russian is not "just another" Russian text. It is sparkling, lively course which presents a language as it is spoken and written today.

A timely offering at a period when Russia, the Russians, and their language are a focal point of world interest.

THE CALENDAR

The calendar is a method of identifying the passage of time and thereby regulating our civil life and religious observances.

Days, months, and years are based on astronomical periods. The day is the time it takes the earth to make one revolution on its axis, the month is associated with the period of rotation of the moon around the earth, while the year has to do with the rotation of the earth around the sun.

Many religious ideas and observances have been connected with the changes of the moon, and in ancient times the calendar took account of the moon rather than the seasons. From new moon to new moon is 29.530 days, and from one spring equinox to the next is 365.24219 days. Since the two are incommensurable, the modern calendar disregards the moon.

THE JULIAN CALENDAR

When Julius Caesar came to power, the Roman Calendar was hopelessly confused. With the advice of the Alexandrian astronomer, Sosigenes, Julius Caesar established the Julian Calendar. The length of the year was taken as  $365\frac{1}{4}$  days, and in order to account for the  $\frac{1}{4}$  day, an extra day was added every fourth year. From 45 B.C. each month has had its present number of days. In the old Roman Calendar which was based on the moon an extra month was inserted to straighten out the difference between twelve lunations, 354.37 days, and 355 days, which they called a year. This was inserted when necessary after February 23rd. In the Julian Calendar the extra day was added by repeating the sixth day before the Kalends (1st) of March, whence comes our word bissextile for leap year.

No very significant change was made till the reform of Pope Gregory XIII in A.D. 1582.

The Julian Calendar is known as the "Old Style" and after the change made by Pope Gregory as the "New Style"; the difference between the two is 13 days. The Calendar so arranged is known as the "Old Style" and is now used by the Eastern Orthodox Church in Russia, Ukraina, Syria and Palestine.

THE GREGORIAN CALENDAR

In that the Solar Year is 11 minutes, 12 seconds less than the Julian Year of  $365\frac{1}{4}$  days, it followed in course of years that the Julian Calendar became inaccurate by several days, and in 1582 this difference amounted to 10 days. Pope Gregory XIII, at the suggestion of Aloysius Lilius, an astronomer of Naples, determined to rectify this, and devised the Calendar now known as the Gregorian Calendar. He dropped or cancelled these 10 days—October 5th being called October 15th—and made centennial years Leap years only once in 4 centuries; so that whilst 1700, 1800 and 1900 were to be ordinary years, 2000 would be Leap year. This modification brought the Gregorian year into such close exactitude with the Solar year that there is only a difference of 26 seconds, which amounts to a day in 3,323 years. This is the "New Style". The Gregorian Calendar was adopted in Italy, France, Spain, Portugal and Poland in 1582, by most of the German Roman Catholic states, Holland and Flanders in 1583, Hungary in 1587. The adoption in Switzerland began in 1584 and was not completed till 1812. The German and Dutch Protestant states generally, along with Denmark adopted it in 1700. British dominions in 1752, Sweden in 1753, Japan in 1873, China in 1912, Bulgaria in 1915, Soviet Russia in 1918, Yugoslavia in 1919, Romania and Greece in 1924, Turkey in 1927. The rules for Easter have not, however, been adopted by those oriental churches that are not subject to the Papacy.

The difference between the two "Styles" will remain 13 days until A.D. 2100.

THE JEWISH CALENDAR

The Jewish Calendar from the institution of the Mosaic Law downward was a lunar one, consisting of twelve months. The cycles of religious feasts commencing with the passover depending not only on the month but on the Moon; the 14th of the month of Abid or Nisan was coincident with the full moon; and the new moons themselves were the occasions of regular festivals; the commencement of the month was generally determined by observations of the new moon, but twelve lunar months would make but 354½ days, the years would be short twelve days of the true year and it was necessary that an additional month, Veadar, be inserted about every third year.

The modern Jewish Calendar is based on fixed rules and not on observation. A common year may contain 353, 354 or 355 days and the Leap year 383, 384 or 385 days. The intercalary month always contains 30 days and is inserted next before the month Adar which name and place it takes. Adar itself is called second Adar or Veadar. Tishri 1 is the Jewish New Year and it cannot be a Sunday, Wednesday or Friday. Tishri 1 is not necessarily the day of new moon but is governed by a mean new moon which is calculated from the value of a mean lunation. It is complicated as compared with the Gregorian Calendar. The intercalary month is introduced seven times in every nineteen years.

The identification of the Jewish months with our own cannot be effected with precision on account of the variations existing between the lunar and solar month. The Jewish Calendar is given on page 24.

THE MOHAMMEDAN CALENDAR

The Mohammedan Calendar is called also the Calendar of Hegira (i.e. Migration) and is attributed to the primary migration of Mohammed, the Prophet of Islam, on September 20th, 622 A.D. from Mecca, his native city in the land of Hejaz, Arabia, to the city of Medina in the north of the same land. In Medina the Prophet and Founder of the Islamic Faith died and was buried.

Each year consists of 12 lunar months, and since no intercalation is made the months go round the seasons in between 32 and 33 years. In civil life there seems to be confusion as to the beginning of the month and unless both the day of week and day of the month are stated it is impossible to give an exact interpretation to a date.

The year 1380 according to the Hegira Calendar began on June 25th, 1960, the year 1381 on June 14th, 1961 Gregorian.

CALENDAR REFORM

Reform of the calendar, so that it may be balanced in structure, perpetual in form and harmonious in arrangement, has long been under discussion.

In 1937, when an enquiry was made by the League of Nations, 14 governments approved in principle of The World Calendar. World War II delayed further action. In October 1953 India put a proposal before the Economic and Social Council of the United Nations which embodied The World Calendar.

At Geneva, in July 1954, it was unanimously decided to request governments of member and non-member states to express their views on the desirability of calendar reform.

On May 16, 1955, ECOSOC decided to extend the time for sending in replies for a year.

The World Calendar comprises equal quarters in which the first month of each has 31 days and the other two 30 days each. These quarters contain exactly 91 days, 13 weeks and 3 months, with 13 Sundays and 78 weekdays, while each month has 26 weekdays. The last day of every year, December 31st, is called Worldsday and is placed between Saturday, December 30th, and Sunday, January 1st. In leap years, to make up the quota of 366 days, Leapyear Day, June 31st, is similarly interposed between Saturday and Sunday at the half year. The calendar is thus stabilized and has the same day-and-date arrangement every year. Christmas always falls on Monday, Dominion Day, July 1st, on Sunday with observance on Monday.

Worldsday is designed to be a world-wide holiday dedicated to international good will. Leapyear Day would also be a day of rest.

The World Calendar is sponsored by the International World Calendar Association, now with headquarters in Ottawa (address P.O. Box 20, Besserer St.) A. J. Hills Chairman of the Canadian Affiliate has succeeded to the Presidency. Hon C. Fraser Elliott, C.M.G., Q.C. is Honorary General Counsel, Charles Clay, B.A., F.A.G.S., is Consultant, and J. Avery Joyce, Ph.D., F.R.G.S., Representative at the United Nations.

The Association has consultative status with the United Nations as a Non-Governmental Organization. Through its affiliates and National Committees throughout the world the Association endeavours to advance its plan of calendar reform, which through ECOSOC was referred to members and non-members of U.N.

In April, 1956 the item World calendar reform was withdrawn from ECOSOC by request of the Association to give time to obtain additional support.

The change-over could be effected without disturbance when the Gregorian calendar commences on a Sunday, which will occur in 1967, Canada's Centennial Year. With The World Calendar, every year commences on Sunday, January 1st.

THE WEEK

The division of the week is found only among Aryan nations and in regions into which they have penetrated. The day is, for convenience, divided into 24 equal parts and is the period of a single rotation of the earth upon its own axis.

A Solar or Astronomical day commences at midnight, and is divided into two equal portions of 12 hours each—those before noon being termed (A.M.) those after noon (P.M.).

The Chinese week consists of 5 days, which are named after iron, wood, water, feathers and earth; they divide the day into 12 parts of 2 hours each.

The Anglo-Saxons named the days of the week after the following deities; Sunday, the Sun; Monday, the Moon; Tuesday, Tiesco (God of War); Wednesday, Woden (God of Storms); Thursday, Thor (God of Thunder); Friday, Freya (Goddess of Love); Saturday, Saturn (God of Time).

The word week is from Wikon (German); = change, succession.

Dominical Letter

The Roman Calendar makers placed the letters A,B,C,D,E,F,G. against the day of the year. The letter which stands against the Sundays is known as the Dominical Letter. In Leap year since no letter is set opposite the added day one letter appears for January and February and the letter preceding for the remainder of the year.

Example—

	C	D	E	F	G	A	B
1960	Sun.	Mon.	Tu.	Wed.	Th.	Fri.	Sat.
Jan.	1	2	3	4	5	6	7
Feb.	26	27	28	29
	C	D	E	—	F	G	A
Mar.					1	2	3

Jan. 1 (Sun.) is C. C therefore is the Dominical letter for Jan. and Feb. Since no letter is assigned for Feb. 29, Sunday from then on comes under the letter, B, which is the letter for the remainder of the year.

Golden Number—The calendar for the phases of the moon is nearly the same every 19 years which is known as the Metonic Cycle. The Golden Number is its number in this Metonic Cycle. To find the Golden Number for 1961 add 1 to 1961 and divide by 19. The remainder, 5, is the Golden Number.

Epact is the age of the moon on some fixed day of the calendar year. (January 1 Gregorian Calendar).

Solar Cycle

In the Julian Calendar the days of the year recurred on the same days of the week in 7 x 4 years; 28 years was called the Solar Cycle. It is little used now.

The Cycle of the Indiction, is a non-astronomical cycle of 15 years. Following Diocletian's reconquest of Egypt in A.D. 297 a provincial census was taken and repeated every 15 years.

Julian Period

This is a combination of the Solar Cycle of 28 years, the Metonic or Lunar Cycle of 19 years, and the Cycle of the Indiction, 15 years. These are all supposed to begin on January 1 of the Julian Calendar which was 4713 B.C. The Julian days are numbered consecutively from Greenwich mean noon on January 1, 4713 B.C.

STANDARD TIME ZONES IN CANADA AND THE UNITED STATES

SOLAR, SIDEREAL AND STANDARD TIME

Apparent Time. — By apparent noon is meant the moment when the sun is on the meridian, and apparent time is measured by the distance in degrees that the sun is east or west of the meridian. Apparent time is given by the sun dial.

Mean Time. — The interval between apparent noon on two successive days is not constant, and a clock cannot be constructed to keep apparent time. For this reason mean time is used. The length of a mean day is the average of all the apparent days throughout the year. The real sun moves about the ecliptic in one year; an imaginary mean sun is considered as moving uniformly around the celestial equator in one year. The difference between the times that the real sun and the mean sun cross the meridian (i.e. between apparent noon and mean noon) is the equation of time.

Sidereal Time. — This is time as determined from the stars. It is sidereal 0 hours when the Vernal Equinox or First of Aries is on the meridian. In accurate time-keeping the moment when a star is on the meridian is observed and the corresponding mean time is then computed with the assistance of the Nautical Almanac or by the help of the table on page 17. (See notes, page 8). When a telescope is mounted equatorially the position of a body in the sky is located by means of the sidereal time.

Standard Time.

Owing to the great breadth of the Dominion the difference in solar time in various parts of the country is adjusted by the creation of Standard Time Zones, one hour in width, fixed between arbitrary lines running north and south, 15° of longitude apart, the time observed in each zone being an exact number of hours slow from Greenwich.

Example: When it is 8 a.m. by Pacific Time it is 12 noon by Atlantic Time and 4 p.m. at Greenwich.

There are seven zones divided as follows, reckoning from Greenwich:

Newfoundland Standard Time 60th Meridian Time	Newfoundland, including Labrador, 3½ hours slow.
Eastern Standard Time 75th Meridian Time	New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island, and those parts of Quebec and N.W.T. east of the 68th Meridian, 4 hours slow. (Railway time changes going west at Campbellton and Saint John, N.B.)
Central Standard Time 90th Meridian Time	Quebec west of the 68th Meridian and Ontario as far west as the 90th Meridian; N.W.T. between the 68th and 85th Meridian, 5 hours slow. (Railway time changes going west at Fort William and Armstrong.)
Mountain Standard Time 105th Meridian Time	Ontario west of the 90th Meridian, Manitoba, southeasterly part of Saskatchewan and N.W.T. between the 85th and 102nd Meridian, 6 hours slow. (Railway time changes going west at Broadview, Watrous, Arcola, Neudorf, Humboldt, Kipling, and Hudson Bay Junction.)
Pacific Standard Time 120th Meridian Time Yukon Standard Time 135th Meridian Time	Saskatchewan except in the southeasterly part; throughout Alberta and in N.W.T. between the 102nd and 120th Meridian, 7 hours slow. (Railway time changes going west at Jasper, Crow's Nest and Field.)
	Throughout British Columbia and in N.W.T. west of the 120th Meridian, 8 hours slow.
	Throughout Yukon Territory, 9 hours slow.

Standard Times as used by the railways in traversing these Zones are in general use. Solar time around the globe varies four minutes with each degree of longitude.

The Standard Time Zones in Canada and the United States are shown on the map above.

ECLIPSES DURING 1961

In 1961 there will be four eclipses, two of the sun and two of the moon.

1. A total Eclipse of the Sun on February 15th. This eclipse will be visible partially in all of Europe and North Africa and most of Asia; the path of totality begins off the east coast of France and sweeps across Southern Europe and Russia and ends in Siberia.

2. A Partial Eclipse of the Moon in the morning of March 2, visible generally in the Pacific Ocean, Australasia and Asia. The beginning will be visible in North America except the extreme eastern part, but the ending will be visible only in the extreme north-western corner of North America. Generally speaking, over the eastern part of the continent the moon will have set and the sun risen before the moon is well into the umbra.

3. An Annular Eclipse of the Sun on August 11. The central line sweeps across the South Atlantic and ends in Antarctica.

4. A Partial Eclipse (nearly total) of the Moon on the night of August 25, visible generally in North and South America.

NOTES ON THE ASTRONOMICAL TABLES

The purpose of the following notes is to explain the tables and charts which are not self-explanatory and to illustrate the uses to which they may be put.

Sunrise, Sunset, Moonrise and Moonset (see tables pp. 9 to 15). These tables give Standard Times of risings and settings for the places to which they apply (i.e. E.S.T. for Toronto and Ottawa, C.S.T. for Winnipeg, P.S.T. for Vancouver). The calculations are for the upper limb (edge) of the sun and they are made for the astronomical (sea) horizon. Accordingly, the times will not be correct if the observer is below or above the level of his visible horizon at the point of sunrise or sunset.

The times of sunrise and sunset for a place other than those given in the table can be obtained with a fair degree of precision by proceeding as follows: Choose two places in the table which bracket your latitude; take the times of sunrise (or sunset) of each of these; change each to Local Mean Time by adding (or subtracting) 4 minutes of time per degree for the number of degrees of longitude by which that place is east (or west) of the standard meridian of its time zone. Then, by finding the change per degree of latitude difference, find the local Mean Time for your own latitude. Finally add (or subtract) 4 minutes for each degree of longitude which you are west (or east) of your standard meridian to obtain Standard Time.

If the place has a latitude nearly equal to that of one of the places listed (say within half a degree) the procedure may be simplified: For each degree by which the place is west (or east) of the listed place add (or subtract) 4 minutes to the tabulated value of the listed place. This gives the time of sunrise or sunset in the Standard Time of the listed place; change to the Standard Time of the required place if it is in a different time zone.

Example: Required to find the time of sunset on Jan. 1, 1961 for Quebec City (lat. 46° 48' N. long. 71° 13' W.).

From tables: Ottawa 16 30, Winnipeg 16 37. Ottawa is about ¼° west of 75th meridian; Winnipeg is about 7° west of 90th meridian. Therefore L.M.T. for Ottawa is 16 30 - 3 = 16 27, and L.M.T. for Winnipeg is 16 37 - 28 = 16 09. Difference in latitude of Winnipeg and Ottawa is about 5°. Thus sunset is earlier from the latitude of Ottawa northward by about 3½ minutes per degree of latitude and, since Quebec is about 1½° farther north than Ottawa, the L.M.T. of sunset at Quebec is 16 27 - 5 = 16 22. Since Quebec is about 3¼° east of the 75th meridian the E.S.T. of sunset at Quebec is 16 22 - 15 = 16 07.

Note: Since Montreal and Ottawa are at about the same latitude the E.S.T. of sunrise and sunset for Montreal may be taken as simply 9 minutes earlier than at Ottawa.

The times of moonrise and moonset are not easily obtained with precision for places other than those listed in the tables because of the more rapid motion of the moon. However, by using the Ottawa, Winnipeg or Vancouver values for Eastern, Central or Western Canada respectively, the errors will usually be less than half an hour.

Azimuth of the Sun at Rising and Setting (see table on page 16). Only twice a year, namely about March 21 and September 23, does the sun rise and set more or less exactly in the east and the west respectively. It is of interest and sometimes of value to know the position of sunrise and sunset at other times. The table on page 16 tabulates these positions in degrees east of north and west of north for sunrise and sunset respectively for a selection of latitudes and dates. For latitudes and dates other than those tabulated take simple proportions.

Time when the Sun is on the Meridian (see table on page 17). If Standard Time is to be obtained from a sun-dial or from a noon marker or, conversely, if direction is to be obtained by the sun from a knowledge of time, it is necessary to know the time when the sun is on the meridian, i.e., due south. The correction to the sun-dial is given for every third day in the table on page 17. (Take simple proportions for intermediate days.) Add this to Apparent Solar Time to obtain Local Mean Time. To obtain Standard Time add (or subtract) 4 minutes per degree of longitude by which you are west (or east) of your standard meridian.

Example: At Toronto on February 3rd what is the Eastern Standard Time when a vertical peg casts a shadow due north?

It is then noon Apparent Solar Time. Correction to the sun-dial from table is +13m.51s. Therefore Local Mean Time is 12h. 13m. 51s. and since Toronto is  $4\frac{1}{2}^{\circ}$  west of the 75th meridian, the Eastern Standard Time is 12h. 13m. 51s. + 17m. 40s. = 12h. 31m. 31s.

Sidereal Time (see table on page 17). For any given moment the local sidereal time may be obtained with an accuracy of a second or two from the table of the Ephemeris of the Sun as follows: In this table choose the date next preceding the given moment. For this date apply the correction to the sun-dial with sign reversed to the sun's apparent right ascension, then add or subtract 12 hours. The result is the Greenwich Sidereal Time (G.S.T.) for 0h G.M.T. on the tabular date. Advance this time by the G.M.T. of the required moment and by 3m 57s per day (about 10s per hour) for the interval between the tabular date and the required moment; finally retard the time by the longitude west expressed in hours, minutes and seconds.

Example: Required to find the local sidereal time for Toronto (longitude 5h, 17m 40s W.) at 22 40 E.S.T. Sept. 12.

G.M.T. of required moment is 3 40 Sept. 13. From table 0h G.M.T. Sept. 13 is 11h 23m 07s + 3m 52s + 12h = 23h 26m 59s. Therefore 3h 40m G.M.T. Sept. 13 is 23h 26m 59s + 3h 40m +  $3\frac{1}{2} \times 10s = 27h 07m 36s$  G.S.T. Therefore local sidereal time is 27h 07m 36s - 5h 17m 40s = 21h 49m 56s.

Altitude of the Sun at Meridian Passage (see table on page 17). For architectural or gardening purposes it may be of value to know the maximum (i.e. noon-time) altitude of the sun at various seasons. This is obtained from the table of the sun's apparent declination which is listed for every third day. (Take simple proportions for intermediate days.) Proceed as follows: Subtract your latitude (presumed in the northern hemisphere) from  $90^{\circ}$ ; add or subtract (as indicated by the sign) the value of the sun's declination for the proper date.

Example: How high is the sun at noon on November 24th at Quebec City (latitude  $46^{\circ} 48'$ )?  $90^{\circ} - 46^{\circ} 48' = 43^{\circ} 12'$ . Sun's declination on Nov. 24 is  $-20^{\circ} 27'$ . Therefore sun's altitude at noon is  $43^{\circ} 12' - 20^{\circ} 27' = 22^{\circ} 45'$ .

MAGNETIC DECLINATION

CHART OF MAGNETIC DECLINATION

A compass needle, even when unaffected by extraneous magnetic fields, does not in general point due north. The amount and direction by which its direction differs from true north is called magnetic declination or variation. The declination varies with the position of the observer and also varies slowly with time. The above chart gives the values of declination over the Dominion as of 1940. These values may be used for 1961 unless accuracy of better than  $1^{\circ}$  is required.

Example: What is the direction of the compass needle at the southern tip of Lake Manitoba?

From the chart this point is about  $\frac{1}{4}$  of the way from the line of  $10^{\circ}E$  declination towards the line of  $15^{\circ}E$  declination. Therefore the declination is  $11^{\circ}E$ , i.e., the needle points  $11^{\circ}$  east of true north.

A large map of Canada showing lines of Equal Magnetic Declination and Annual Change in Canada for 1940 is obtainable from the Map Distribution Office, Labelle Bldg., Ottawa, for 25 cents.

ASTRONOMY IN CANADA

During the past fifty years Canada has established and maintained a prominent place in the field of astronomy, both professional and amateur.

Canada possesses three major astronomical observatories: the Dominion Observatory at Ottawa, the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory at Victoria, and the David Dunlap Observatory at Toronto. The Dominion observatories are operated under the Department of Mines and Technical Surveys and the David Dunlap Observatory is operated by the University of Toronto.

The Dominion Observatory at Ottawa has been operating since 1905. Its principal astronomical functions at the present time are the time service, solar research, and meteoric research. Its largest telescope is a 15-inch refractor.

The principal telescope of the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory is a 72-inch reflector completed in 1918. With this instrument much important research concerning the motion and nature of stars has been accomplished.

The David Dunlap Observatory was completed in 1935, a gift to the University of Toronto from the late Mrs. David Dunlap in memory of her husband. The large telescope at this observatory is a 74-inch reflector. Research problems include stellar motions, stellar spectroscopy, and the study of variable stars.

The telescopes at Toronto and Victoria are exceeded in size by the Mount Palomar 200-inch telescope, the Lick 120-inch telescope, the Mount Wilson 100-inch telescope, all in California, and the 82-inch telescope of the McDonald Observatory in Texas.

Radio telescopes that provide a new way of studying the heavenly bodies are now being operated by the National Research Council, Defence Research

Board, Queen's University and the University of Toronto.

As well as these major observatories where telescopic observations are made every clear night, there are a number of observatories primarily devoted to astronomical instruction. Among these are the Hume Cronyn Memorial Observatory of the University of Western Ontario at London (10-inch refractor), the Observatory of the University of Saskatchewan at Saskatoon (7-inch refractor) and the Observatory of the Royal Astronomical Society of Quebec City (16-inch reflector).

Public visiting hours at these observatories are as follows: Dominion Astrophysical Observatory at Victoria, Saturday evenings throughout the year; the Dominion Observatory, Ottawa, Saturday evenings, April to October inclusive, and during day-time, Monday to Friday, from 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. and 2:00 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. local time; David Dunlap Observatory at Toronto, Saturday evenings April 1 to October 31, and Wednesday afternoons throughout the year; Hume Cronyn Observatory at London, first Saturday evening in each month; University of Saskatchewan Observatory at Saskatoon and the R.A.S.C. Observatory at Quebec, one hour every clear evening.

There are other smaller observatories at Universities and Colleges which are reserved for student instruction.

In addition to professional astronomers there are many amateurs in Canada who follow this interesting study. Most of these are members of the Royal Astronomical Society of Canada (see Index), membership in which is open to all who are interested in the subject.

METEORS, METEORITES, AND METEOR SHOWERS

A meteor or "shooting star" appears momentarily in the sky when a particle from beyond the earth enters the earth's atmosphere at a high velocity. Most visible meteors are caused by particles smaller than a grain of wheat, and these small particles are completely vaporized in the atmosphere at a height of about 80 miles. A spectacular meteor, known as a fire-ball, is caused by a larger body which may fall to the earth's surface in one or more pieces. Particles seen thus to fall, or subsequently found by analysis to be of this nature, are called meteorites.

Meteorites may be divided into two main classes—the irons, which are almost pure nickel-iron, and the stones. Any meteorite is characterized by a dark, smooth crust caused by the fusion of the outer part.

Meteors may be observed on any clear, moonless night at an average rate of about ten an hour. At times there occur meteor showers, when meteors are seen with much greater frequency and appear to radiate from a particular part of the sky which is called the radiant. This is an effect of perspective, the radiant being the vanishing point of the parallel tracks of the meteors. Meteor showers usually repeat themselves annually, and have nearly always been associated with the orbits of comets. When the earth passes through or near the orbit of a comet it intercepts stragglng particles which cause meteors. The principal meteor showers for the northern hemisphere are listed below.

The study of meteors and meteorites adds to our knowledge of the nature and origin of the solar system and also to our knowledge of the earth's outer atmosphere.

CHARTERED BANKS

Chartered banks in Canada are incorporated by Special Act of the Canadian Parliament and governed by the Bank Act (chapter 48 of the Statutes of 1953-1954), which continues the charters in force until July 1st, 1964. The Act specifies the business and powers of the banks and the types of transactions in which they may legally engage.

Banks may make loans on many types of security, or without security. They are prohibited from lending money upon the security of shares of the capital stock of a bank, and they may not lend on mortgages and hypothecs except as authorized by or under the National Housing Act 1954, the Farm Improvement

Loans Act and the Veterans Business and Professional Loans Act, although security upon real or immovable property may be taken as additional collateral for debts previously incurred by the bank.

A bank is not permitted to issue or re-issue its notes payable to bearer and intended for circulation. Notes formerly issued by the banks for circulation in Canada and outstanding are redeemable by Bank of Canada upon presentation. ## THE WAY AND THE MOUNTAIN

by Marco Pallis

The Way and the Mountain is a sequel to Peaks and Lamas, and was inspired by the author's return to the East after the war. He was permitted to enter Tibet to continue the studies he had started ten years before; learning the language and the Tibetan-Buddhist way of life from the Lamas themselves. His book deals with the various facets of the spiritual life, relating them to the practical problems of existence, and includes an exhaustive study of the Dalai Lama and his function. This is based on traditional data and is the only available authoritative source of information.

WEIGHTS, MEASURES, AND STANDARDS IN CANADA

The Weights and Measures Act, R.S.C. 1952, Chapter 292, Sections 9, 12 and 13, establishes the standards of length, weight and capacity for Canada. Multiples or fractions in addition to those shown below can be found by referring to Sections 9, 10, 11, 12 and 13. The standard measure of length is the yard; one third of the yard is the foot; the twelfth part of the foot is an inch; and the cord contains one hundred and twenty-eight cubic feet. The standard measure of weight is the pound (avoirdupois); one-sixteenth of the pound is an ounce ( $437\frac{1}{2}$  grains); one seven thousandth of the pound is a grain; a cental or hundred weight is one hundred pounds; a ton is two thousand pounds; an ounce troy is four hundred and eighty grains. The standard measure of capacity, for liquids or otherwise, is the gallon that contains ten Canadian standard pounds weight of distilled water weighed in dry air against brass weights of density 0.30346 of a pound per cubic inch with the water and air at sixty-two degrees Fahrenheit and the barometer at thirty inches. The quart contains one-fourth of the gallon; the pint contains one-eighth of the gallon; a bushel contains eight gallons; and the hundred and sixtieth part of the gallon by volume is a fluid ounce.

IMPERIAL MEASURE

The gallon, sometimes known as the "Imperial Gallon," contains 277.42 cubic inches. This compares with the American gallon of 231 cubic inches (liquid) and 268.80 cubic inches (dry). The more common comparison between liquid gallons places the Canadian about 20% greater in volume than the U.S. The common conversion fraction is 6 to 5 in favour of the Canadian gallon.

FRUIT, VEGETABLES AND HONEY ACT AND REGULATIONS

Chapter 62 of the Statutes, 1935

The provisions of this Act are intended to promote orderly marketing throughout the fruit, vegetable and honey industries and to assist in the settlement of disputes through the medium of an Arbitration Board. The Act is applicable to interprovincial or foreign trade only.

There follows a brief summary of the provisions of the Act and Regulations:

1. Establishment of grades or standards of quality for fruits, vegetables and honey.

2. Prescribes conditions relative to inspection, grading, marking of packages, shipment, and sale of fruit, vegetables and honey produced within or without Canada.

3. Establishment of standard packages for various kinds of fruits, vegetables and honey.

4. Provides for the detention of fruit, vegetables, honey or packages in respect of which an offence under the Act or Regulations has been committed.

5. Prescribes penalties for contravention of any provisions of the Act or Regulations.

6. Licensing of brokers, commission agents and dealers, handling fruits and vegetables in interprovincial and international trade.

7. Provides for a commercial fruit and vegetable inspection service at both shipping point and destination for which appropriate fees are charged for certificates issued.

8. Registration of honey packers and persons assembling honey and to prescribe fees for honey inspection certification and licensing.

9. Provides for the inspection and certification of imported produce for which a fee is charged for customs clearance purposes or to assist in determining if contract stipulations have been met.

10. The compulsory inspection and certification of fruits, vegetables and honey exported out of Canada for which a fee is charged.

11. Provides for amendment and addition to regulations through Ministerial Order.

Note: A copy of this Act may be obtained by sending a request, accompanied by a fee of one dollar ($1.00) to the Queen's Printer, Department of Public Printing and Stationery, Ottawa.

THE CANADA GRADES FOR SHELL EGGS

The grade of an egg is determined by three factors—interior quality, shell appearance and weight.

Canada Grade A1—excellent interior quality; shell clean, normal in shape and sound in construction; (an optional grade).

Canada Grade A—A very good interior quality, shell clean, practically normal in shape and sound in construction.

The weight divisions for Canada Grade A1 and Canada Grade A—

Extra Large Size—each egg weighs at least two and one-quarter ounces.

Large Size—each egg weighs at least two ounces

Medium Size—each egg weighs at least one and three-quarter ounces, but less than two ounces.

Small Size—each egg weighs at least one and one-half ounces, but less than one and three-quarter ounces.

Pee wee Size—each egg weighs less than one and one-half ounces. (This size does not apply to Canada Grade A1).

Canada Grade B—standard for interior quality less than Canada Grade A; shell must be reasonably clean and may be slightly abnormal in shape, but of sound construction; each egg weighs at least one and three-quarter ounces.

Canada Grade C—standard for interior quality less than Canada Grade B; shell may be dirty but not cracked; no minimum weight. (Canada Grade A Small Size or Canada Grade A Pee wee Size may be packed in this grade.)

Canada Grade Cracks—meets standards for at least Canada Grade C, except shell is cracked, but contents not leaking.

MEASUREMENT OF SHIP TONNAGE

Followed by the British Board of Trade; applying to all ships in the British Merchant Service, including Canadian registered vessels.

Gross TONNAGE is the unit of volume containing 100 cubic feet in the internal volume of a vessel under the tonnage deck to which is added: (1) the 'tween deck space, if any, above the tonnage deck. (2) the volume of permanently closed-in spaces above the upper deck available for cargo stores, or for passengers and crew and (3) any excess of hatchways.

NET OR REGISTER TONNAGE. The Net or Register Tonnage is the Gross Tonnage as found above less deductions for crew space, stores, navigation spaces, allowance for propelling power and other deductions allowable under the Merchant Shipping Act.

DEADWEIGHT TONNAGE is the amount of cargo, equipment and effects on board, and is expressed in tons of 2240 lbs each; or alternatively it is the difference in the displacement at a given draft and the displacement of the vessel "lightship" with water in boilers to working level and ready for steam but with none of the above mentioned items on board.

TRUST COMPANIES AND LOAN COMPANIES IN CANADA

Trust Companies act as Executors, Trustees and Administrators under wills, or by appointment, as Trustees under marriage or other settlements, as Agent or Attorney in the management of estates of the living, and as Fiscal Agent for municipalities and companies. A few companies accept appointments as Authorized Trustees in Bankruptcy. Some Trust Companies receive funds and deposits for guaranteed investments, and the loaning of such trust funds is restricted by law to securities authorized by the Trustee Act. The loaning of company funds is not so restricted.

The principal function of Loan Companies is the loaning of funds on first mortgage security, the money thus made available for development purposes being obtained mainly by the sale of debentures to the investing public and by Savings Department deposits

TRADE MARK

Trade Mark means a mark that is used by a person for the purpose of distinguishing or so as to distinguish wares or services manufactured, sold, leased, hired or performed by him from those manufactured, sold, leased, hired or performed by others; a certification mark; a distinguishing guise, or a proposed trade mark.

CERTIFICATION MARKS

A certification mark may be adopted and registered only by a person who is not engaged in the manufacture, sale, leasing or hiring of wares or the performance of services such as those in association with which the certification mark is used.

DISTINGUISHING GUISE

(2) a mode of wrapping or packaging wares, the appearance of which is used by a person for the purpose of distinguishing or so as to distinguish wares or services manufactured, etc., by him from those ... of others,

CONFUSING MARK OR NAME

For the purposes of this Act a trade mark or trade name is confusing with another trade mark or trade name if the use of such first mentioned trade mark or trade name would cause confusion with such last mentioned trade mark or trade name in the manner and circumstances described in section 6.

UNFAIR COMPETITION

No person shall make a false or misleading statement tending to discredit the business, wares or services of a competitor; direct public attention to his wares, services or business in such a way as to cause or be likely to cause confusion in Canada, at the time he commenced so to direct attention to them, between his wares, services or business and the wares, services or business of another; pass off other wares or services as and for those ordered or requested; make use, in association with wares or services, of any description that is false in a material respect and likely to mislead the public as to (i) the character, quality, quantity or composition, (ii) the geographical origin, or (iii) the mode of the manufacture, production or performance of such wares or services; or do any other act or adopt any other business practice contrary to honest industrial or commercial usage in Canada.

PROHIBITED MARKS

No person shall adopt in connection with a business, as a trade mark or otherwise, any mark as designated in section 9 of the Act (q.v.).

REGISTERABLE TRADE MARKS

A trade mark is registrable, subject to certain conditions, if it is not

- (a) a word that is primarily merely the name or the surname of an individual who is living or has died within the preceding thirty years;
- (b) whether depicted, written or sounded, either clearly descriptive or deceptively misdescriptive in the English or French languages of the character or quality of the wares or services in association with which it is used or proposed to be used or of the conditions of or the persons employed in their production or of their place of origin;
- (c) the name in any language of any of the wares or services in connection with which it is used or proposed to be used;
- (d) confusing with a registered trade mark; or
- (e) a mark of which the adoption is prohibited under the terms of the Act.

A trade mark that is not registrable by reason of paragraph (a) or (b) above is registrable if it has been so used in Canada by the applicant or his predecessor in title as to have become distinctive at the date of filing an application for its registration.

PERSONS ENTITLED TO REGISTER TRADE MARKS

Any applicant who has filed an application in accordance with section 29 for registration of a trade mark that is registrable and that he or his predecessor in title has used in Canada or made known in Canada or has duly registered in his country of origin, in association with wares or services is entitled, subject to this Act, to secure its registration in respect of such wares or services, unless at the date on which he or his predecessor in title first so used it or made it known it was confusing with

- (a) a trade mark that had been previously used in Canada or made known in Canada by any other person;
- (b) a trade mark in respect of which an application for registration had been previously filed in Canada by any other person; or
- (c) a trade name that had been previously used in Canada by any other person.

16 (2)

Any applicant who has filed an application in accordance with section 29 for registration of a trade mark that is registrable and that he or his predecessor in title has duly registered in his country of origin and has used in association with wares or services is entitled, subject to section 37, to secure its registration in respect of the wares or services in association with which it registered in such country and has been used, unless at the date of filing of the application in accordance with section 29 it was confusing with

- (a) a trade mark that had been previously used in Canada or made known in Canada by any other person;

- (b) a trade mark in respect of which an application for registration had been previously filed in Canada by any other person; or
- (c) a trade name that had been previously used in Canada by any other person.

16 (3)

Any applicant who has filed an application in accordance with section 29 for registration of a proposed trade mark that is registrable is entitled, subject to sections 37 and 39, to secure its registration in respect of the wares or services specified in the application, unless at the date of filing of the application it was confusing with:

- (a) a trade mark that had been previously used in Canada or made known in Canada by any other person;
- (b) a trade mark in respect of which an application for registration had been previously filed in Canada by any other person; or
- (c) a trade name that had been previously used in Canada by any other person.

APPLICATIONS FOR REGISTRATION

An applicant for the registration of a trade mark shall file with the Registrar an application containing

- (a) a statement in ordinary commercial terms of the specific wares or services in association with which the mark has been or is proposed to be used;
- (b) in the case of a trade mark that has been used in Canada, the date from which the applicant or his named predecessors in title, if any, have so used the trade mark in association with each of the general classes of wares or services described in the application;
- (c) in the case of a trade mark that has not been used in Canada but is made known in Canada, the name of a country of the Union in which it has been used by the applicant or his named predecessors in title, if any, and the date from and the manner in which the applicant or such predecessors have made it known in Canada in association with each of the general classes of wares or services described in the application;
- (d) in the case of a trade mark that is the subject in another country of the Union of a registration or an application for registration by the applicant or his predecessor in title on which the applicant bases his right to registration, particulars of such application or registration and, if the trade mark has neither been used in Canada nor made known in Canada, the name of a country in which the trade mark has been used by the applicant or his named predecessor in title, if any, in association with each of the general classes of wares or services described in the application;
- (e) in the case of a proposed trade mark, where the application is not accompanied by an application for registration of a person as a registered user, a statement that the applicant intends to use such trade mark in Canada;
- (f) in the case of a certification mark, particulars of the defined standard that the use of the mark is intended to indicate and a statement that the applicant is not engaged in the manufacture, sale, leasing or hiring of wares or the performance of services such as those in association with which the certification mark is used;
- (g) the address of the applicant's principal office or place of business in Canada, if any, and if the applicant has no office or place of business in Canada, the address of his principal office or place of business abroad and the name and address in Canada of some person or firm to whom any notice in respect of the application or registration may be sent, and upon whom service of any proceedings in respect of the application or registration may be given or served with the same effect as if they had been given to or served upon the applicant or registrant himself.
- (h) unless the application is for the registration only of a word or words not depicted in a special form, a drawing of the trade mark and such number of accurate representations of the trade mark as may be prescribed; and
- (i) a statement that the applicant is satisfied that he is entitled to use the trade mark in Canada in association with the wares or services described in the application.

The Registrar shall refuse an application for the registration of a trade mark if he is satisfied that

- (a) the application does not comply with the requirements of section 29;
- (b) the trade mark is not registrable; or
- (c) the applicant is not the person entitled to registration of the trade mark because it is confusing with another trade mark for the registration of which an application is pending, and where the Registrar is not so satisfied, he shall cause the application to be advertised in the manner prescribed.

Within one month from the advertisement of an application, any person may, upon payment of the prescribed fee, file a statement of opposition with the Registrar.

REGISTRATION OF TRADE MARKS

When an application for registration of a trade mark other than a proposed trade mark is allowed the Registrar shall thereupon register the trade mark and issue a certificate of its registration.

When an application for registration of a proposed trade mark is allowed, the Registrar shall give notice to the applicant accordingly and shall register the trade mark and issue a certificate of its registration upon receipt of a declaration that the applicant, his successor in title or a person approved as a registered user under subsection (7) of section 49 has commenced the use of the trade mark in Canada in association with the wares or services specified in the application.

If the applicant for registration of a proposed trade mark fails to file the declaration referred to in subsection (2) within six months after the notice by the Registrar referred to in subsection (2), his application shall be deemed to be abandoned.

Registration of a trade mark shall be made in the name of the applicant or his transferee; the day on which registration is made shall be entered on the register, and the registration takes effect on that day.

AMENDMENT OF THE REGISTER

The Registrar may, on application by the registered owner of a trade mark made in the prescribed manner, make certain amendments to the register and justify an extension of time.

TRANSFER

A trade mark, whether registered or unregistered, is transferable, and deemed always to have been transferable, either in connection with or separately from the goodwill of the business and in respect of either all or some of the wares or services in association with which it has been used.

PATENTS IN CANADA

The Patent Act, Chap. 203, R.S., 1952.

A synopsis of the principal provisions of The Patent Act are given below:—

For a copy of the Act apply to the Commissioner of Patents, Ottawa, who receives all applications and has charge of all records.

As it is difficult for an applicant to properly comply with the regulations of the Patent Office unless he is conversant with the process of obtaining a patent, any person contemplating obtaining a patent is advised to consult one of the patent solicitors whose cards appear in this volume.

DEFINITION OF INVENTION

The Act defines 'invention' as any new and useful art, process, machine, manufacture or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement in the same.

WHO MAY OBTAIN PATENTS

Subject to the various provisions of the Act, any inventor or legal representative of an inventor, of an invention which was:

(a) not known or used by others before he invented it, and

(b) not described in any patent or in any publication printed in Canada or in any other country more than two years before presentation of the petition, and

(c) not in public use or on sale in Canada for more than two years prior to his application in Canada may obtain a patent granting him an exclusive property in such invention.

Any inventor or legal representative of an inventor who applies in Canada for a patent for an invention for which application for patent has been made in any other country by such inventor or his legal representative before the filing of the application in Canada, shall not be entitled to obtain in Canada a patent for that invention unless his application in Canada is filed:

(a) before issue of any patent to such inventor or his legal representative for the same invention in any other country; or

(b) if a patent has issued in any other country within twelve months after the filing of the first application by such inventor or his legal representative for patent for such invention in any other country.

No patent shall issue for an invention which has an illicit object in view, or for any mere scientific principle or abstract theorem.

APPLICATIONS FOR PATENTS

An applicant for a patent shall state in his application, if resident in Canada, his address in Canada. If not so resident, the name and address of some person resident in Canada who has been nominated to represent the applicant or patentee for all purposes of the Act including the service of any proceedings taken under any provision of the Act. This representative may be changed if necessary.

Each application for a patent shall be completed and prepared for examination within twelve months after the filing of the application, and in default thereof, or upon failure of the applicant to prosecute the same within six months after any examiner's action thereon of which notice shall have been given to the applicant, such application shall be deemed to have been abandoned, but it may be reinstated within twelve months after the date on which it was deemed to have been abandoned, if the failure to prosecute the application within the time specified was not reasonably avoidable. An application so reinstated shall retain its original filing date.

TREATY OR CONVENTION RIGHTS

Section 29 (1), provides that an application for a patent filed in Canada by any person entitled to protection under the terms of any treaty or convention relating to patents to which Canada is a party who has, or whose agent or other legal representative has, previously regularly filed an application for a patent for the same invention in any other country which by treaty convention or law affords similar privilege to citizens of Canada, shall have the same force and effect as the same application would have if filed in Canada on the date on which the application for patent for the same invention was first filed in such other country, provided the application in this country is filed within twelve months from the earliest date on which any such application was filed in such other country or from the thirteenth day of June, 1923.

No patent shall be granted on an application for a patent for an invention which had been patented or described in a patent or publication printed in Canada or any other country more than two years before the date of the actual filing of the application in Canada, or which had been in public use or on sale in Canada for more than two years prior to such filing.

JOINT APPLICATIONS

Section 33 (1), new in 1947, provides that:

(1) Where an invention is made by two or more inventors, and one of them refuses to make application for a patent or his whereabouts cannot be ascertained after diligent enquiry, the other inventor or his legal representative may make application, and a patent may be granted in the name of the inventor who makes the application, on satisfying the Commissioner that the joint inventor has refused to make application or that his whereabouts cannot be ascertained after diligent enquiry.

Where an applicant has agreed to assign a patent when granted to another person or to a joint applicant and refuses to proceed with the application; or where disputes arise between joint applicants as to proceeding with the application, the Commissioner may grant a patent to either one of the parties. Procedure is also outlined when a joint applicant retires or is added.

ASSIGNMENTS—APPLICANTS NOT INVENTORS

A patent may be granted to any person to whom an inventor has assigned or bequeathed by his last will his right to obtain it and the assignee may register such an assignment, after which the application cannot be withdrawn without the consent of the assignee.

IMPROVEMENTS MAY BE PATENTED

Any improvement to a patented invention may be patented.

TERM OF PATENT

The term limit for the duration of patents issued by the Patent Office under this Act is 17 years from the date on which the patent is granted and issued but if the application for the patent was filed prior to August 1, 1935, the term is 18 years from the date on which the patent is granted and issued.

REFUSAL OF PATENTS

Where a patent is refused, the applicant may any time within 6 months' appeal the decision to the Exchequer Court. (Sec. 44)

GOVERNMENT OWNED PATENTS

Sections 20, 21, and 22 are new in 1947, dealing with secret patents and patents relating to Atomic Energy. Section 20 (1) provides that:

20 (1) Any officer, servant or employee of the Crown or of a corporation which is an agent or servant of the Crown, who, acting within the scope of his duties and employment as such, invents any invention in instruments or munitions of war, shall, if so required by the Minister of National Defence, assign to such minister on behalf of Her Majesty all the benefits of the invention and of any patent obtained or to be obtained for the invention; and any other person who invents any such invention may so assign to such minister on behalf of Her Majesty all the benefits of the invention and of any patent obtained or to be obtained for the invention.

Provision is made that an inventor, other than those mentioned in the preceding section, shall be entitled to compensation. Persons making assignments or having knowledge thereof are deemed to have information entrusted in confidence. Other provisions deal with secrecy. Subsection (15) provides that:

The Governor in Council, if satisfied that an invention relating to any instrument or munition of war, described in any specified application for patent not assigned to the Minister of National Defence, is vital to the defence of Canada and that the publication of a patent therefor should be prevented in order to preserve the safety of the State, may order that such invention and application and all the documents relating thereto shall be treated for all purposes of this section as if the invention had been assigned or agreed to be assigned to the Minister of National Defence.

INFRINGEMENT

Anyone infringing a patent shall be liable to the patentee and to all persons claiming under him for all damages sustained by the patentee or by any such person by reason of such infringement; and the Court may issue an injunction restraining the opposite party from the further use, sale, etc., of the article.

Provision is made that a person who, previous to the granting of the patent has purchased, constructed or acquired any invention shall have the right of using and selling the article, etc.

IMPEACHMENT

If any person has reasonable cause to believe that any process used or proposed to be used or any article made, used or sold or proposed to be made, used or sold by him might be alleged by any patentee to constitute an infringement of an exclusive property or privilege granted thereby, he may bring an action in the Exchequer Court of Canada against the patentee for a declaration that such process or article does not or would not constitute an infringement of such exclusive property or privilege.

PRIORITY OF INVENTIONS

No patent or claim in a patent shall be declared invalid or void on the ground that, before the invention therein defined was made by the inventor by whom the patent was applied for it had already been known or used by some other inventor, unless it is established either that,

(a) before the date of the application for the patent such other person had disclosed or used the invention in such manner that it had become available to the public; or that

(b) such other person had, before the issue of the patent, made an application for patent in Canada upon which conflict proceedings should have been directed; or that

(c) such other person had at any time made an application in Canada which by virtue of section twenty-nine of this Act had the same force and effect as if it had been filed in Canada before the issue of the patent and upon which conflict proceedings should properly have been directed had it been so filed.

PATENTED ARTICLE TO BE MARKED OR STAMPED

Every patentee under this Act shall, if possible, stamp or engrave on each patented article sold or offered for sale by him notice of the year of the date of the patent applying to such article, thus—Patented, 1935, or as the case may be.

When, from the nature of any patented article it cannot be so stamped or engraved the patentee shall, if possible, affix to it, or to every package wherein one or more of such articles is or are enclosed, a label marked with the like notice.

When any patented article or material is, from its nature or character such that it cannot be so stamped or engraved and cannot, reasonably, be packaged or labelled the patentee shall, in all descriptive or advertising matter published by him and relating to such patented article or material, insert the like notice.

ABUSE OF RIGHTS UNDER PATENTS NOT WORKING A PATENTED INVENTION

The Attorney General of Canada or any person interested may at any time after the expiration of three years from the date of the grant of a patent apply to the Commissioner alleging in the case of that patent that there has been an abuse of the exclusive rights thereunder and asking for relief under this Act. The exclusive rights under a patent shall be deemed to have been abused in any of the following circumstances:—

(a) If the patented invention (being one capable of being worked within Canada) is not being worked within Canada on a commercial scale, and no satisfactory reason can be given for such non-working;

Provided that, if an application is presented to the Commissioner on this ground, and the Commissioner is of opinion that the time which has elapsed since the grant of the patent has by reason of the nature of the invention or for any other cause been insufficient to enable the invention to be worked within Canada on a commercial scale, the Commissioner may make an order adjourning the application for such period as will in his opinion be sufficient for that purpose.

(b) If the working of the invention within Canada on a commercial scale is being prevented or hindered by the importation from abroad of the patented article by the patentee or persons claiming under him, or by persons directly or indirectly purchasing from him, or by other persons against whom the patentee is not taking or has not taken any proceedings for infringement;

(c) If the demand for the patented article in Canada, is not being met to an adequate extent and on reasonable terms;

(d) If, by reason of the refusal of the patentee to grant a licence or licences upon reasonable terms, the trade or industry of Canada or the trade of any person or class of persons trading in Canada, or the establishment of any new trade or industry in Canada, is prejudiced and it is in the public interest that a licence or licences should be granted;

(e) If any trade or industry in Canada, or any person or class of persons engaged therein, is unfairly prejudiced by the conditions attached by the patentee, whether before or after the passing of this Act, to the purchase, hire, licence, or use of the patented article, or to the using or working of the patented process;

(f) If it is shown that the existence of the patent, being a patent for an invention relating to a process involving the use of materials not protected by the patent or for an invention relating to a substance produced by such a process, has been utilized by the patentee so as unfairly to prejudice in Canada the manufacture, use or sale of any such materials.

LICENSE WHERE INVENTION NOT BEING WORKED

If a case of abuse is established the Commissioner may order a grant to an applicant of a licence on such terms as the Commissioner may think expedient; or if he is satisfied that an invention is not being worked on a commercial scale within Canada, he may under certain circumstances order the grant of an exclusive licence to an applicant able to provide capital for the working of the patent; or he may order the patent to be revoked.

In granting an exclusive licence a royalty shall be arranged payable to the patentee.

CAVEATS

Any Intending applicant for a patent who has not yet perfected his invention and is in fear of being despoiled of his idea, may file in the Patent Office a document setting forth a description of his invention so far as it has proceeded, with or without plans, at his own will, and the Commissioner, on payment of the prescribed fee shall cause that document, which shall be called a "caveat," to be preserved in secrecy with the exception that he shall deliver copies thereof whenever required by the applicant or by any judicial tribunal. The secrecy of the document shall cease when the applicant obtains a patent for his invention.

If application is made by any other person for a patent for any invention with which such "caveat" may in any respect interfere the Commissioner shall forthwith give notice of such application by mail to the person who has filed such "caveat", and such person shall, within three months after the date of mailing the notice, if he wishes to avail himself of the "caveat", file his petition and take the other steps necessary on an application for a patent, and if, in the opinion of the Commissioner, the applications are conflicting, like proceedings may be had in all respects as are by this Act provided in the case of conflicting applications.

Unless the person filing a "caveat" makes application within one year from such filing the Commissioner shall be relieved from the obligation of giving notice and the "caveat" shall thereafter remain as a simple matter of proof as to novelty or priority of invention, if required.

PATENTS ISSUED OUT OF CANADA

The Commissioner shall upon the request of any person who states in writing the name of the inventor, if available, the title of the invention and the number and date of a patent said to have been granted in another country inform such person whether an application for a patent of the same invention is pending in Canada or not.

JURISDICTION OF EXCHEQUER COURT

54. The Exchequer Court of Canada shall have jurisdiction, on the application of the Commissioner or of any person interested, to order that any entry in the records of the Patent Office relating to the title to a patent be varied or expunged.

PATENT ATTORNEYS

A register of attorneys shall be kept in the Patent Office containing the names of all attorneys entitled to represent applicants for patents.

FEES

The principal fees are as follows:—

On filing an application for patent.....	$30.00
On grant of patent, payable on pain of forfeiture within six months from the date of notice of the allowance of patent.....	$30.00
On asking reinstatement of abandoned application under section thirty-one.....	$25.00
On filing an amendment after allowance of an application for patent.....	$10.00

FORFEITED APPLICATIONS

75 (2) A forfeited application may be restored and a patent granted thereon on application to the Commissioner within six months from the incurrance of the forfeiture, on payment with the application for restoration, in addition to the fee payable on the grant of the patent, of a further fee of thirty dollars and the restored application shall be subject to amendment and re-examination.

THE CANADIAN LAW OF COPYRIGHT

by HAROLD G. FOX, Q.C.

WHAT IS COPYRIGHT? Copyright, as its name implies, is merely the right to restrain copying. By the terms of the Canadian Copyright Act, which came into force on January 1st, 1924, copyright subsists in every original literary, dramatic, musical, and artistic work. The work must be original and its author must, at the date of its making, be a British subject, a citizen or subject of a foreign country which has adhered to the Berne Convention, or be resident within the British Dominions; and if in the case of a published work the work was first published within British dominions or in a country which has adhered to the Berne Convention. A work is deemed to be first published in such a country if published there and in some other country simultaneously. The last word is interpreted as allowing fourteen days interval between the publication in the two countries.

Publication means the issue of copies to the public. It does not include the performance in public of a dramatic or musical work, the delivery in public of a lecture, the exhibition in public of an artistic work, or the construction of an architectural work of art. Nor does the issue of photographs and engravings of works of sculpture and architectural works of art constitute publication of such works.

Copyright is defined by the Act as the sole right to produce or reproduce the work or any substantial part thereof in any material form whatsoever, to perform, or in the case of a lecture to deliver, the work or any substantial part thereof in public; if the work is unpublished, to publish the work or any substantial part thereof. Copyright as conferred by the statute includes the sole right to produce, reproduce, perform, or publish translations of the work, the sole right to convert from a dramatic work to a non-dramatic work, to convert from a non-dramatic work or an artistic work to a dramatic work, by way of performance in public or otherwise, to make records, perforated rolls, cinematograph films or other contrivances by means of which the work may be mechanically performed or delivered; to reproduce, adapt and publicly present the work by cinematograph, to communicate it by radio communication, and to authorize any of these acts.

ORIGINALITY. The originality required by the statute relates to the expression of thought. The form in which the work is clothed should be original although the idea or concept upon which the work is based need have no originality whatsoever. Originality in copyright law means that the work must be in a form created by its author and must not be copied from any other work. An illustration of this principle may be furnished in simple terms by reference to copyright in paintings. An artist may paint a particular scene, let us say, in the Laurentian mountains. A second artist may set up his easel on exactly the same spot as the first artist and may paint exactly the same scene, as he sees it. Whatever similarity the two works may have is irrelevant. The second work is an original work and entitled to copyright. If, however, the second artist does not go to the scene itself, but paints his canvas from a view of the first artist's canvas, the second artist not only infringes the first artist's copyright, but is not entitled to copyright in his own work. The same principle, of course, applies to photographs.

In order to understand this principle it will be useful to refer to copyright in compilations and anthologies. An author may decide to write, as an example, a history of the Roman Empire. He cannot know that history other than by reading the sources, original and secondary. From these he compiles a work based upon the works of others, but to which he has lent an original character by his own mental labours, and is therefore entitled to copyright in that work. A second author may go to the same original and secondary sources and compile a like work. He is entitled to copyright in it and does not infringe the copyright of the first compiler provided he uses the first compiler's work fairly and only for checking the accuracy of his own without copying any substantial part of it.

LITERARY WORKS. Literary works are those which are expressed in print or writing such as books, maps, plans, tables and compilations. Copyright in a work includes the title of the work if that title is original and distinctive, but the mere taking of a title apart from any substantial part of a work does not constitute infringement. It is only when the title has become so far identified with a work as to mean that work and that work alone in the minds of the public, that such a taking can be restrained on the ground that the second work is passed off on the public as and for the first work.

DRAMATIC WORKS. Dramatic works include any piece for recitation, choreographic work, or entertainment in dumb show, the scenic arrangement or acting form of which is fixed in writing or otherwise, and any cinematograph production where the arrangement or acting form or the combination of incidents represented give the work an original character. Copyright subsists not only in the actual words of the work but in the dramatic incidents created. In order to be protected as a dramatic work there must be some dramatic action. On this basis a dance step or piece of dramatic action may be protected by a written description of the acts of the performer. In that case there is a double copyright, one in the writing itself as a literary work and the other in the reproduction of the dance or drama, which is thus fixed in writing.

MUSICAL WORKS. Musical works are defined as any combination of melody and harmony, or either of them, printed, reduced to writing or otherwise graphically produced or reproduced. There is, therefore, no copyright in an impromptu until its notation has been fixed in writing or print by the composer. There then exists the right to restrain either its copying in printed form or its public performance.

ARTISTIC WORKS. Artistic works include works of painting, drawing, sculpture and artistic craftsmanship, and architectural works of art and engravings and photographs. Engravings include etchings, lithographs, woodcuts, prints and other similar works not being photographs. An architectural work means any building or structure having an artistic character or design in respect of such character or design, or any model for such building or structure, but the protection is confined to the artistic character and design and does not extend to processes or methods of construction.

INDUSTRIAL DESIGNS. Certain works fall within the definition of artistic works but will not be subject to copyright owing to certain conditions. These are such works as are designs capable of being registered under the Industrial Design and Union Label Act, and used or intended to be used as models or patterns to be multiplied by any industrial process. Designs which do not meet that definition are not industrial designs but artistic works and are subject to artistic copyright. A design is deemed to be used as a model or pattern to be multiplied by an industrial process when it is reproduced or intended to be reproduced in more than fifty single copies not together constituting a set or is to be applied to (1) printed paper hangings, (2) carpets, floor cloths or oil cloths manufactured or sold in lengths or pieces, (3) textile piece goods or textile goods manufactured or sold in lengths or pieces or (4) lace, not made by hand.

LITERARY OR ARTISTIC MERIT. In no case need the subject of copyright possess any degree of literary or artistic merit. It would be highly improper if copyright were to depend on the opinion of any court as to the presence or absence of such an elusive quality, depending solely on individual taste, value, or discretion. The writer of doggerel verse or the mystery novel is entitled to the same copyright as the winner of the Nobel prize in literature, and the author of the comic strip cartoon receives no less protection than do those whose works are hung in the galleries of the nation. In this regard the applicable maxim is De gustibus non disputandum.

IMMORAL WORKS. There is one minor qualification to the above remarks. The courts will not protect immoral, indecent, obscene, or blasphemous works. What falls within the scope of these terms is impossible of definition and must depend upon the susceptibilities and sensibilities of any court adjudicating upon the matter. Thus, thirty years ago Elinor Glynn's Three Weeks was held to be an obscene work disentitled to protection. Within the present decade Judge Wolsey, in the United States, promulgated his now famous decision holding that Joyce's Ulysses was not an immoral work. Tempora mutantur nos et mutamur in illis! It may safely be said in principle that a work which is not purely pornographic but is honest work endeavouring to create an atmosphere, to depict life or to delineate the author's or artist's concept of things as they are or ought to be, would not be held to be immoral and would be entitled to copyright.

OWNERSHIP OF COPYRIGHT. The author of the work is, in general, the first owner of the copyright. The author is the person who actually writes, draws, paints, carves, models, fabricates, or composes the work, unless he is a mere amanuensis or workman. A person who suggests the idea of a work is not its author or even joint author. A ghost writer, therefore, is the author of the biography which he writes and the possibly famous person of whom he writes and who supplies the facts and recollections upon which the biography is based is not entitled to any share in the copyright—unless, of course, there is an agreement to the contrary. It should always be remembered that copyright is a property right and, therefore, contracts can be made respecting its ownership and disposal.

A work of joint authorship is one produced by the collaboration of two or more authors in which the contribution of one author is not distinct from the contribution of the other author or authors. Joint authors, in general, own copyright in equal shares.

In the case of photographs the person or corporation owning the original negative from which the photograph is made is deemed to be the author and therefore the owner of the copyright. The same principle applies in the case of the owner of the original plate from which any records, perforated rolls and other contrivances for mechanically reproducing sounds were derived.

Where a plate or other original of an engraving, photograph or portrait is ordered and made for valuable consideration and pursuant to the order, then, in the absence of agreement to the contrary, the person giving the order and not the author of the work is the first owner of copyright. This is an important principle. In the case of a portrait painter, the subject who gives the order and pays for the portrait receives not only the finished portrait for which he pays, but the copyright in his portrait as well. In the case of photographs the same principle applies. But where the photographer takes photographs on speculation and then endeavours to sell them to the subject, it is the photographer who owns the copyright.

Where the author of the work is in the employment of some other person under a contract of service or apprenticeship and the work was made in the course of his employment by that person, the person by whom the author was employed is, in the absence of any agreement to the contrary, the first owner of the copyright. Where, therefore, a writer on a newspaper or magazine holds a position on the staff of that publication for which he is paid a salary, and writes, let us say, feature articles, the copyright in those articles belongs to the owner of the publication. If, however, an independent or free lance writer is retained to write a series of articles for which the owner of the publication contracts to pay him a certain sum of money, the copyright in those articles belongs to the writer and not to the owner of the publication, because the writer is under a contract for service and not a contract of service.

Where an article or other contribution to a newspaper, magazine or similar periodical, is written by a staff writer acting in the course of his employment and there is no agreement to the contrary, although the copyright in the article resides in the owner of the publication, the writer nevertheless has reserved to him a right to restrain its publication otherwise than as part of a newspaper, magazine or similar periodical. Thus a staff writer may contribute to his newspaper or magazine a series of twenty or thirty articles. It is then decided to publish those articles in book form. The owner of the publication cannot publish without the author's consent, and the author, not being the owner of the copyright, cannot publish without the consent of the owner of the publication. The only way publication can occur is by mutual agreement, and in such case it is presumed that the author will make his bargain to his best advantage.

There is a distinct cleavage between the intangible right known to the law as copyright, and the ownership of the physical embodiment in which that right resides. This is of particular importance in the case of artistic works. Many painters and sculptors are unaware of the fact that when they sell one of their works they do not necessarily part with the right to reproduce it or, in other words, to issue copies of it to the public. It must also be said that many purchasers of artistic works, particularly art galleries, national and otherwise, take an arbitrary view of the rights they acquire when they purchase an artistic work. Copyright is something entirely apart from the piece of canvas and pigment composing a painting and from the mass of bronze, marble or other material forming a work of sculpture. The sale of the physical object and the transfer of property therein do not of themselves transfer copyright. Copyright is a separate and distinctly existing right and can only be transferred by contract, express or implied. For this reason authors, artists, composers, sculptors and other creators of original works would be well advised to ensure that every sale of their works is made in accordance with a written memorandum. If such a procedure were generally adopted the present habit indulged in by art galleries of selling photographs and other reproductions of artistic works in their possession without compensation to the artist would promptly cease.

But, since the practice of selling photographs is to the publicity advantage of both gallery and artist, artists would be well advised to enter into an agreement with galleries to continue to issue photographs on a royalty basis.

TERM OF COPYRIGHT. The general term of copyright in works published and performed in public during the author's lifetime is the life of the author and fifty years after his death. In the case of a literary, dramatic or musical work or an engraving in which copyright subsists at the time of the death of the author, but which has not been published nor performed, nor in the case of a lecture, been delivered in public before that date, copyright subsists till publication or performance or delivery in public, whichever may first happen, and for a term of fifty years thereafter. It will thus be seen that copyright in unpublished works may extend almost indefinitely.

In case of works of joint authorship copyright subsists during the life of the author who dies last and fifty years after his death. The term of copyright in photographs is fifty years from the making of the original negative. In the case of records, perforated rolls, and other mechanical contrivances for the reproduction of sound, the term is fifty years from the making of the original matrix, plate, or negative.

Copyright in Government publications is fifty years from the date of first publication. This term is provided by statute, but one would be well advised to remember that the Crown may well claim a prerogative right of copyright in perpetuity.

In all cases of published works the term of copyright is subject to a statutory right for any person to reproduce the work on statutory terms at any time after the expiration of twenty-five years or, in the case of works in which copyright subsisted on June 4, 1921, thirty years, from the death of the author. The statutory terms require notice of intention to publish and the payment of royalties calculated at 10 per cent of the published price of the work.

ASSIGNMENT AND LICENCE. Creators of original works may assign their copyright either wholly or partially and either generally or subject to territorial limitations and either for the whole term of the copyright or for any part thereof, and may grant any interest in the right by way of licence. No such assignment or grant is, however, valid unless it is in writing signed by the owner of the copyright or by his duly authorized agent. The owner of copyright may, therefore, split the right into as many component parts as he desires. He may assign or license the right to publish, to produce or to reproduce his work on one or a million occasions. He may allow reproduction in one or a dozen countries or in one or a thousand cities. He may assign or license to different persons the right to reproduce a work of art by photography and by colour process. He may license its reproduction to one person for a calendar and to another for a Christmas card. In fact there is hardly any limit that can be placed upon the dealings which a copyright owner may have in his copyright if he can find someone who desires a particular part of the right and is willing to pay for it.

Where part of the copyright is assigned, the assignee becomes the owner of that part of the right. If, therefore, the composer of a musical work assigns the right of public performance, the assignee can restrain everybody else from performing the work in public. He cannot, however, restrain the author or the person to whom the author may assign that particular part of the copyright from issuing printed copies of the musical score to the public.

An assignee or licensee is wise to register his assignment or licence in the Copyright Office at Ottawa.

DROIT MORAL. The moral right of an author is recognized by the Canadian Copyright Act which provides that, independently of the copyright and even after the assignment, he shall have the right to claim authorship of the work and to restrain distortion, mutilation or other modification in the work which would be prejudicial to his honour or reputation. The statute does not say who is to decide what amount or what quality of distortion, mutilation or modification would be prejudicial to an author's honour or reputation. This is a subject which has received wide treatment in the European and South American countries. There is no corresponding section in the British Copyright Act and, despite the quarter of a century during which the section has found its place in the Canadian statute, no case has been heard by the courts in which this section was invoked. It is interesting to speculate whether the reason for such lack of interest in the section lies in the honesty and integrity of Canadian publishers, performers and owners of other reproducing media or in the apathy and indifference of Canadian authors, artists, and composers.

FORMALITIES. Copyright under the Canadian Copyright Act is automatic and the author of a work need comply with no formality whatsoever in order that he shall possess copyright in his work. The statute contains provisions for registration of copyright but these are permissive only and no registration need take place. There is one minor point on which registration might possibly benefit the author but it is involved in such legal technicalities that it need not be discussed further. It may safely be said that an author is perfectly protected if he entirely neglects to register his copyright.

BERNE CONVENTION. Once a work is made, copyright subsists not only in Canada but throughout the British Commonwealth and all countries which have adhered to the Berne Convention. By arrangement with the United States, Canadian authors are entitled to apply for copyright in that country but their copyright is not automatic. It must be registered and all other requirements of the United States Copyright Act complied with including publication within the United States if the work is a literary work in the English language.

INFRINGEMENT. Infringement consists in doing without the consent of the owner of the copyright anything the sole right to do which is by the Copyright Act conferred on the owner of the copyright. It will thus be seen that it is infringement, without the consent of the owner of the copyright, to issue copies of a work to the public, to perform it in public, to reproduce it in any manner, to make a translation of it, to convert a novel into a dramatic work, to convert a dramatic work into a novel, and so on. But it must be emphasized that copyright is not an absolute monopoly, but is only the right to restrain copying, and if some other person produces a similar work independently of the owner of the copyright, there will be no infringement.

Importation of infringing works constitutes infringement as well as their being made in the country. There are effective provisions in the Copyright Act and in the Customs Tariff Act for preventing importation of infringing copies.

The making of only one copy of a work will constitute infringement and it need not be an exact copy. A colourable imitation is sufficient. There must, however, be a substantial part of the work taken or a substantial part of the work performed in public. In one case the reproduction of the march Colonel Bogey consisting of so much as was played in twenty seconds was held to be an infringement. In another case dealing with the musical work Walking my Baby back Home sufficient was played to allow the court to recognize the tune, although the evidence was so conflicting that the plaintiff claimed that thirty-two bars had been played and the defendant claimed only five bars had been played.

There are specific provisions relative to infringement in cases of making records and other mechanical contrivances for the reproduction of sounds. They are somewhat complicated but, in general, they provide that the making of such contrivances shall not constitute infringement if similar contrivances have previously been made by, or with the consent of, the owner of the copyright, and the person who makes them gives notice of his intention to make them and pays the stipulated royalty of two cents per perforated roll or playing surface.

LAWFUL USE OF COPYRIGHT. By statute there are certain lawful uses of copyright and no person is permitted to complain if the use of his work is made under the following circumstances:

1. Any fair dealing with any work for the purpose of private study, research, criticism, review or newspaper summary. The use must be fair. Thus in one Canadian case an entire article was printed in a newspaper as the basis upon which a criticism was printed following it. The court held that this was not fair dealing.

2. The author of an artistic work who is not the owner of copyright therein may use any mould, cast, sketch, plan, model or study made by him for the purpose of the work, provided that he does not thereby repeat or imitate the main design of the work.

3. Paintings, drawings, engravings, or photographs may be made of a work of sculpture or artistic craftsmanship if permanently situated in a public place or building. The same thing may be done in connection with any architectural work of art so long as such drawings, etc., are not in the nature of architectural drawings or plans.

4. Short passages from copyright published literary works which are not themselves published for the use of schools may be published in a collection mainly composed of non-copyright matter bona fide intended for the use of schools and so described in the title and in any advertisements issued by the publisher. But no more than two of such passages from works by the same author may be published by the same publisher within five years and in each case the source from which such passages are taken must be acknowledged.

5. A newspaper may publish a report of a lecture delivered in public, unless the report is prohibited by a conspicuous notice affixed before and maintained during the lecture.

6. The reading or recitation in public by one person of any reasonable extract from any published work. Note the limitation to "one person." This precludes the public performance by more than one actor of even a small scene in a dramatic work.

7. Any musical work may be performed without motive of gain by the directors at any agricultural, agricultural-industrial exhibition or fair which received a grant from or is held under Dominion, provincial or municipal authority.

8. Any church, college or school and any religious, charitable or fraternal organization may perform any musical work without payment if done in furtherance of a religious, educational, or charitable object.

9. A report of an address of a political nature delivered at a public meeting may be published in a newspaper.

REMEDIES FOR INFRINGEMENT. In case of infringement the owner of copyright has two remedies. He may sue the infringer in the civil courts for damages incurred by him, as well as the profits made by the infringer, and may ask for the delivery to him of all infringing copies. Such an action is to be brought within three years after the infringement takes place. In addition, the owner of the copyright may prosecute the infringer criminally for his acts. This should give the copyright owner little, if any, personal satisfaction and no gain would accrue to him other than the satisfaction of personal animus. The first remedy is the proper one and is that which ought to be followed.

WORKS MADE BEFORE 1924. Copyright as we now know it came into effect with the new Canadian Copyright Act on January 1, 1924. But copyright subsisted in many works in Canada at that date, and in such cases they received copyright under the new Act by virtue of a special transition section. It would be difficult to express in any moderate space the principles upon which copyright subsisted in Canada prior to 1924. There was in existence a Canadian Copyright Act prior to that date which required registration and any work registered under that Act would naturally be the subject of copyright. But copyright might also have subsisted in certain works prior to 1924 which were not registered under that Act. We may state the position shortly as follows:

1. Copyright subsisted at the effective date (January 1, 1924) in all works then unpublished whatever their nature.

2. Literary works published in the British Dominions were the subject of copyright whether registered or unregistered either in Canada or at Stationers' Hall in London.

3. Dramatic works were protected as literary works in their printed form, but so far as their performing right was concerned copyright subsisted during the life of the author and seven years after his death, or forty-two years from the date of first performance of the work. If the work fell within that definition on the effective date copyright subsisted in that work provided it had not been first performed in a foreign country to which the Imperial International Copyright Act did not extend.

4. Musical works enjoyed copyright in printed form as literary works, whether registered or unregistered and so far as concerned their performing right were treated the same as dramatic works.

5. Artistic works were protected prior to 1924 only if they were registered under the then existing Canadian Copyright Act.

6. Mechanical contrivances for reproducing sounds, if made before January 1, 1924, are by special provision treated as if the present Copyright Act had been in force at the time they were made.

The above is not intended to be an exhaustive statement of the law of copyright prior to the commencement of the present Copyright Act. It is, however, of the utmost importance when considering works in existence before January 1, 1924 to understand what was their status at that effective date because the new Act contains a transition section which conferred copyright under the new Act upon all works in which copyright subsisted at the effective date. The first thing to decide, therefore, is whether a work was or was not the subject of copyright on January 1, 1924. If it was, no matter what the nature or term of the copyright to which it was then entitled, it is now entitled, generally speaking, to copyright as established by the new Copyright Act.

FUTURE LEGISLATION. The Report on Copyright of the Royal Commission on Patents, Copyright, Trade Marks and Industrial Designs was published on August 1st, 1957. Many radical changes in the law on copyright are proposed, but no bill has as yet been presented to Parliament. The above summary therefore sets out the law presently applicable until such time as a new Statute is enacted.

It is a matter of no little difficulty to endeavour to explain the principles of the law of Copyright within the short compass of this article. Many subjects have obviously been left untouched and there will naturally remain many pitfalls for the unwary. The intention of this article is to give to the author, artist, sculptor and composer, a very broad and general idea of the rights he possesses in his original creations. Those rights ought to be protected and their owners will find that an appreciation and understanding of those rights and an insistence upon their recognition will earn them respect in this commercial world, while at the same time according to them some measure of reward for their labours. Those labours have produced and are producing great works for the benefit and enjoyment of mankind and as a famous jurist said nearly two centuries ago, "It is wise in any state to encourage letters and the painful researches of learned men. The easiest and most equal way of doing it, is, by securing to them the property of their own works. Nobody contributes, who is not willing; and though a good book may be run down and a bad one cried up, for a time; yet sooner or later, the reward will be in proportion to the merit of the work. A writer's fame will not be the less, that he has bread, without being under the necessity of prostituting his pen to flattery or party, to get it. He who engages in a laborious work, which may employ his whole life, will do it with more spirit, if, besides his own glory, he thinks it may be a provision for his family."

ESTATES EXEMPT FROM SUCCESSION DUTY

2. An estate, the aggregate value of which does not exceed $20,000.00, where the only persons who participate are the following, or some of them, and any one of the persons mentioned in (a), (b), (c) or (d) does not receive more than $10,000.00.

(a) Any brother or sister of the deceased;

(b) Any descendant of a brother or sister of the deceased;

NOTE: See provisions of Section 74 of the Child Welfare Act, 1958. "Child" is defined in Section 1(d) of the Succession Duty Act.

DEPENDANTS' ALLOWANCE AND INDIVIDUAL DEPENDANT ALLOWANCE

The Succession Duty Act was amended in 1959 by the Succession Duty Amendment Act to bring into the Act exemptions in favour of the widow, dependant children and infirm husband of the deceased parallel to those in the new Dominion Estate Tax Act.

Section 2, subsection 1, of the Succession Duty Amendment Act, 1959, enacts a new subsection (1a) of Section 6 of the Succession Duty Act. Clause (a) of Section 6 (1a) provides that no duty shall be levied on a dependant, when the total of the benefits to all dependants does not exceed the total of their individual exemptions. This total of individual exemptions has been defined as "Dependants' Allowance".

"Dependants' Allowance" means,

(i) where the deceased is survived by a wife and no dependent children, $60,000,

(ii) where the deceased is survived by a wife and a dependent child or children, an amount equal to the sum of $60,000 and $10,000 for each dependent child,

(iii) where the deceased is survived by an infirm husband one dependent child, $70,000,

(iv) where the deceased is survived by an infirm husband and more than one dependent child, an amount to the sum of $60,000 and $10,000 for each dependent child, or

(v) where the deceased is not survived by a spouse but is survived by a dependent child or children, an amount equal to the product expressed in dollars of $15,000 and the number of dependent children.

The following are examples of the operation of this Clause:

1. A man dies leaving an estate of $80,000 survived by a widow and two dependent children. Here the dependants' allowance is $80,000 and no duty is payable, if the estate passes wholly to these dependants or any one of them.

1a. A man dies leaving an estate of $150,000 with a widow and two dependent children; he leaves $80,000 among these three dependants. Here no duty is payable on the benefits to the dependants but the rest of the estate passing to other persons is dutiable as at present.

1b. A man leaves an estate of $150,000 again with a widow and two dependent children to whom he leaves the whole estate. Here duty is payable on the whole estate as at the present time, unless Clause b of Section 6(1a) applies.

2. A woman dies leaving an infirm husband and four dependent children. Her estate is $100,000. Here no duty is payable if the estate goes wholly to these dependants or to any one of them.

3. A man or woman dies leaving five dependent children, and no surviving spouse, leaving an estate of $75,000. Here no duty is payable if the estate is divided among these children or goes to any one of them.

Clause b of Section 6 (1a) provides that where the benefit to a "dependant" does not exceed the amount of his "individual dependant allowance" no duty shall be payable by him.

The amounts of the "individual dependants' allowance" are:

(i) in the case of the wife of the deceased, $60,000,

(ii) in the case of the infirm husband of the deceased where the deceased is survived by a dependent child, $60,000,

(iii) in the case of a dependent child of the deceased where the deceased is survived by a wife or infirm husband, $10,000 or

(iv) in the case of a dependent child of the deceased where the deceased is not survived by a spouse, $15,000,

EXEMPTIONS FROM SUCCESSION DUTY, WHETHER OR NOT THE ESTATE AS A WHOLE IS EXEMPT.

- (b) Any person to whom there is a transmission, with respect to such transmission, where the value of all the transmissions to such person, does not exceed $500.00;
- (c) Any person to whom a disposition is made, with respect to such disposition, where the value of all the dispositions to such person does not exceed $500.00;

The total amount in respect of which no duty shall be levied under clauses d, e and f shall not exceed an annuity or yearly income of $100.00; and

SPECIAL REMISSION OF DUTY

Section 46 of the Act provides as follows:

Where the deceased dies from wounds inflicted, accident occurring or disease contracted within twelve months before death while in the active naval, military or air service of Her Majesty, the Treasurer may, if he thinks fit, remit the whole or any part of the duty for which the husband, wife, father, mother, child, son-in-law, daughter-in-law, brother or sister of the deceased is liable.

NOTE: If any remission is made under section 46 the property, transmission or disposition with respect to which such remission is made must nevertheless be included in the aggregate value.

respect to the following and the property and dispositions concerned shall not be included in the aggregate value nor included for the purpose of determining any rate of duty.

- (a) Any disposition for religious, charitable or educational purposes to any religious, charitable or educational organization which carries on its work solely in Ontario;

- (d) That portion of any property devised or bequeathed by the deceased for religious, charitable or educational purposes to any religious, charitable or educational organization which carries on its work both in and outside Ontario as is in the same ratio to the whole that its expenditures for carrying on its work in Ontario bear to its total expenditures during such period as the treasurer may determine.

An additional "notch" provision was enacted in 1959 to cover the new exemptions in favour of the widow, dependent children, and infirm husband of the deceased.

Such returns shall be made within three months after the death of deceased or within such further period as Treasurer may allow.

Section 12 also provides that the applicant for probate, administration or other grant shall, at the time of making application, make and file with the Succession Duty Department an affidavit containing,—

In the case of an annuity, term of years, life estate or income which is not an interest in expectancy, the duty with respect to such shall be payable in a number of equal annual instalments equal to:—

(a) the number of years

(i) of expectancy of life of the person who benefits, or

(ii) for which such annuity, term of years or income is to run, as the case may be; or

ALLOWANCE FOR DUTY PAID IN OTHER JURISDICTIONS

For the purpose of avoiding double taxation on residents in Ontario an allowance shall be made for duty levied and paid on personal property situate in the jurisdictions mentioned below where the deceased owner died domiciled in Ontario, where such property passes to Ontario residents and where duty is levied on such residents, by Ontario, with respect to the transmission of such property. The allowance made by Ontario in such circumstances will be the amount of duty levied on such property by the foreign jurisdiction; provided however that if the duty levied on such property by the foreign jurisdiction exceeds the duty levied by Ontario with respect to the transmission of such property, the allowance will be the amount of the Ontario Duty.

The jurisdictions concerned are as follows:

(a) The United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland;

(b) The Union of South Africa;

(c) The Commonwealth of Australia;

(d) Eire;

(e) The Dominion of New Zealand;

(f) The other Provinces of the Dominion of Canada, save and except Newfoundland;

(g) The District of Columbia; and

(h) Each of the States of the United States of America.

The allowance to be made by Ontario, as aforesaid, shall apply where the deceased died on or after June 21st, 1946 and with the object of relieving Ontario citizens as far as possible, in this respect, the allowance shall be applicable whether or not the foreign jurisdictions, or any of them, make similar provisions in converse cases.

RE 1951-1960 AMENDMENTS

There were a few amendments made to The Succession Duty Act in 1951. Among these was a very important re-enactment which provided that no duty would attach to the disposition mentioned below and that such disposition would not be included in the aggregate value nor included for the purpose of determining any rate of duty. The disposition in question is as follows:—

Any disposition where actual and bona fide enjoyment and possession of the property in respect of which the disposition is made, was assumed more than five years before the date of death of the deceased by the person to whom the disposition is made, or by a trustee for such person, and thenceforward retained to the entire exclusion of the deceased or of any benefit to him whether voluntary or by contract or otherwise.

In addition to the 1951 Amendment referred to above, there was another amendment made to the Act in 1952 which provides that any person may make payment not exceeding $1500.00 under any pension fund, plan or scheme of general application to employees of whom the deceased was one, without the consent of the Treasurer, where payment is made to or for the benefit of any member or members of the family of the deceased, and notice of the making of payment shall be transmitted forthwith to the Treasurer.

The 1953 amendment referred to above in relation to preferred rates was designed to take care of a situation where the aggregate value was say, $51,000., all going, e.g. to the widow. The duty at the applicable rates would be more than $1000. The amendment in such cases, automatically reduces the duty to $1000., thus leaving a clear $50,000.

The 1954 amendments were of a technical nature for the purpose of correcting doubts as to meaning.

In 1955, however, there was an amendment permitting banks, credit unions, trust companies and others to pay $500.00 out of money on deposit without consent, but upon notice to the Treasurer, where the deceased died domiciled in Ontario.

In 1957 clause (h) of Section 3 of the Succession Duty Act was re-enacted, as well as subsection 1 of ### Section 24 of the Succession Duty Act.

In 1958 subsection 2 of Section 9 was amended in raising the amount which an insurance company might pay out without the consent of the Treasurer from $1,500 to $2,500.

In 1959 amendments were made in the Succession Duty Act:

1. To bring into the Succession Duty Act exemptions in favour of the widow, dependent children and infirm husband of the deceased parallel to those in the new Dominion Estate Tax Act.
2. To amend the existing definition of "child" in the Act so that the definition of "dependant child" will correspond more closely to the definition of dependant child in the Estate Tax Act, and also to remove certain anomalies in the existing definition.
3. To increase from $10,000 to $20,000 the size of an estate in which collaterals (brothers, sisters, nephews and nieces, etc.) will pay no duty, unless one collateral receives more than $10,000 and provide that in that case the present additional rate only, and not the existing "base" rate will apply.
4. To increase from $1,500 to $2,500 the amount which may be paid without the Treasurer's consent out of a pension fund or similar fund to a member of the deceased's family.

In 1960 the following amendments were made:

1. Subclause iii of clause d of section 1 was amended to widen the definition of child.
2. Clause h of subsection 1 of section 4 was repealed.
3. Subsection 3 of section 9 was amended increasing the amount which may be paid without the Treasurer's consent out of money on deposit with banks, credit unions, trust companies and others from $500.00 to $1,500.00.
4. Subsection 3a was added to section 9 permitting any employer of the deceased to pay as on or account of salary, wages or other remuneration owed to the deceased, or on account of commissions for services rendered by the deceased, an amount not exceeding $1,500.00 without the consent of the Treasurer. This subsection only applies where the deceased died domiciled in Ontario and notice of the payment must be sent to the Treasurer.

PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND

Under agreement with the Dominion Government Prince Edward Island vacated the succession duty field for a period of five years from April 1, 1947, although duties are payable on properties passing prior to that date. This agreement was renewed for an additional five years from April 1, 1952 and was further renewed for an additional five years on 15th July, 1957.

DESCENT AND DISTRIBUTION OF PROPERTY PROVINCE OF ONTARIO

A CONDENSED SUMMARY OF THE LAW OF INTESTATE ESTATES

All real and personal property which is vested in any person without a right in any other person to take by survivorship shall, on his death, whether testate or intestate, and notwithstanding any testamentary disposition, devolve to and become vested in his personal representative from time to time as trustee for the persons by law beneficially entitled thereto and subject to the payment of his debts, and so far as such property is not disposed of by deed, will, contract or other effectual disposition, the same shall be administered, dealt with and distributed as if it were personal property not so disposed of.

"A husband who, if The Devolution of Estates Act had not been passed, would be entitled to an interest as tenant by the curtesy in the real property of his wife, may, by deed or instrument in writing executed, and attested by at least one witness and delivered to the personal representative, if any, or if there is none, deposited in the office of the Registrar of the Supreme Court at Osgoode Hall, within six months after his wife's death, elect to take such interest in the real and personal property of his wife as he would have taken if the said Act had not been passed, in which case the husband's interest therein shall be ascertained in all respects as if the said Act had not been passed, and he shall be entitled to no further interest thereunder.

The real and personal property of every man dying intestate and leaving a widow whether or not he leaves issue shall, where the net value of such real and personal property does not exceed $5,000.00, belong to his widow absolutely and exclusively. The term "net value" means the value of the real and personal property after payment of the charges thereon and the debts, funeral expenses and expenses of administration, including succession duty.

Where the estate of the husband consists in whole or in part of real property, then notwithstanding anything set out above or anything hereinafter set out with respect to the benefits to the widow, such benefits shall not accrue to her and she shall only be entitled to her dower unless she elects to take her distributive share, as set out herein, in lieu of dower. The term "dower" means the right of the widow, for her life to one-third of the rents and profits from the real estate owned by her husband at his death.

By the provisions of The Devolution of Estates Amendment Act, 1952, the 1918 Enactment, as it stood in our present Devolution of Estates Act, (Chapter 103-R.S.O.-1950) was repealed and it was further provided that any real property which but for the provisions of the 1918 Enactment, would have vested in the persons beneficially entitled thereto, shall be deemed to have vested in such persons notwithstanding such provisions.

The Devolution of Estates Amendment Act, 1953, was passed so that an illegitimate child or the mother of an illegitimate child, under certain circumstances, shares in the estate.

Subject to what is set out above, the estate of a person dying intestate is distributed as set out below, according to the Devolution of Estates Act, being Chapter 103 of The Revised Statutes of Ontario, 1950. It will be noted that where the widow takes a share, the net value of the estate is presumed to be in excess of $5,000.00. Where there is no widow to take a share, the net value of the estate is immaterial.

DISTRIBUTION

If the Intestate die leaving,—

1. A widow only, the widow gets $5,000.00 plus interest thereon at 4% from date of death until payment and two-thirds of the residue. Remaining one-third of the residue equally to the next of kin of the deceased husband and those who legally represent them. For example, if the next of kin were a father, mother, brother and sister, or any of these and if there were children of a deceased brother or sister, the said one-third would be divided equally among all of these, save that the children aforesaid would take per stirpes and not per capita,—that is they would take equally the share which their father or mother would have taken had he or she survived the intestate. If there are no kindred to inherit, the said remaining one-third of residue would go to the Crown.

2. Widow and one child or legal representatives of child, $5,000.00 and interest as above and half residue to widow. The other half to child or equally among legal representatives.

3. Widow and children and legal representatives of deceased children—$5,000.00 and interest as above and one-third of residue to widow. The other two-thirds equally among the children and the legal representatives of deceased children, the latter taking per stirpes.

4. Widow and father or mother or brother or sister, $5,000.00 and interest as above and two-thirds of the residue to widow. The remaining one-third of residue to the father or mother or brother or sister.

If the intestate die leaving,—

1. A husband only,—half to the husband and remaining half among next of kin of deceased wife and those who legally represent them and in same proportions as mentioned in No. 1 above. If there are no kindred to inherit, the said remaining one-half would go to the Crown.

2. A husband and child or legal representatives of child,—one-third to husband. The remaining two-thirds to child or equally among legal representatives.

3. A husband and children and legal representatives of deceased children,—one-third to husband. The remaining two-thirds equally among the children and the legal representatives of deceased children,—the latter taking per stirpes.

4. Husband and father or mother or brother or sister,—one-half to the husband. The remaining half to the father or mother or brother or sister.

If the intestate die without leaving a spouse, but leaving,—

(a) a child or legal representatives of child,—all to child or equally among the legal representatives.

(b) Children and legal representatives of deceased children,—equally among all,—the legal representatives taking per stirpes.

(c) Children by two spouses,—equally among all.

(d) Child and grandchild of a deceased child,—half to child and half to grandchild who takes by representation.

If the intestate die without spouse or issue but leaving,—

(a) A father, mother, brother and sister or any of these and children of a deceased brother or sister,—equally among all,—the said children sharing per stirpes.

(h) A father or mother, or brother or sister,—all to the one who survives.

(c) A grandparent or grandparents,—all to him or her or equally among these.

(d) Brother or sister of the whole blood and brother or sister of the half blood, equally among the two.

(e) Posthumous brother or sister and mother, equally among the two.

(f) Brother and grandfather,—all to brother.

(g) Grandniece or grandnephew and niece or nephew,—all to niece or nephew.

(h) Brother and aunts or uncles,—all to brother.

(i) Uncles or aunts children and brother or sisters grandchildren,—equally among all.

(j) Grandparent and uncle or aunt,—all to grandparent.

(k) Uncle and deceased uncle's or aunt's child,—all to uncle.

(l) Nephew or niece by brother or half-brother and nephew or niece by sister or half-sister,—equally among the two.

(m) Children of deceased brothers or sisters or children of deceased brothers and sisters,—equally per capita.

Note—Child Welfare Act, 1958, (1); For all purposes the adopted child, upon the adoption order being made, becomes the child of the adopting parent and the adopting parent becomes the parent of the adopted child as if the adopted child had been born in lawful wedlock to the adopting parent.

Where the intestate dies without lawful heirs, all of his estate will go to the Crown."

THE QUEEN'S CIVIL LIST

Until George III. came to the throne in 1760, the income of the sovereign was derived chiefly from Crown lands and certain landed property. In the feudal ages these lands constituted a princely patrimony. In later times this Crown property was greatly reduced by lavish grants to royal favorites, so much so that at the accession of Queen Anne, Parliament endeavored to save the remnant by an Act (1 Anne, c. 8) which prohibited alienation of Crown lands, and enacted stringent provisions in regard to the length of the term for which they might be leased and the rents reserved.

Queen Anne, George I. and George II. derived the larger part of their income from their life-interest in the Crown property, but when George III. came to the throne he surrendered his life-interest in the Crown lands. It was turned over to the nation in return for a fixed Civil List of £800,000, subsequently increased to £900,000. George IV., William IV., Queen Victoria and Edward VII., on their accessions, surrendered their life interest in the Crown lands in return for a Civil List. The same course has been taken by each subsequent monarch on coming to the throne.

Certain hereditary revenues have also been surrendered to the Exchequer.

In 1910 the King's Civil List was fixed at the yearly sum of £470,000.

By the Civil List Act of 1937, the civil list for King George VI was fixed at £410,000 subject to certain abatements while the revenues of the Duchy of Cornwall were vested in His Majesty.

The Civil List Act, 1952, fixed the Civil list for Queen Elizabeth II at £475,000, allocated as follows:

H. M. Privy Purse.....	£ 60,000
Salaries of H. M. Household.....	185,000
Expenses of H. M. Household.....	121,800
Royal Bounty, alms and special services.....	13,200
Supplementary Provision.....	95,000
	£475,000

This sum is subject to a reduction equal to a proportion of the net revenues of the Duchy of Cornwall, so long as the Duke of Cornwall is a minor.

In addition to the Civil List as above, provision is made for other members of the Royal Family on a per annum basis as follows:—

Queen Elizabeth, the Queen Mother, £70,000.
The Duke of Edinburgh, £40,000.
The Princess Margaret, £15,000.
The Duke of Gloucester, £35,000.
The Princess Royal, £6,000.

The revenue of the estates of the Duchy of Lancaster (which have been attached to the Crown since 1399), is paid over to the Keeper of Her Majesty's Privy Purse.

Until comparatively recent times the office of Prime Minister was not recognized officially. In 1905 the Prime Minister was given precedence, by Royal Warrant, next after the Archbishop of York and over every member of the Government except the Lord Chancellor. There was no salary attached to the office of Prime Minister until the passing of the Ministers of the Crown Act in 1937, and the holder usually combined with it some other appointment, such as First Lord of the Treasury, which carried a salary.

THE TREASURY

Great George Street, S.W. 1.

The Treasury is the Department which deals with all matters of public finance, home and overseas; gives sanction for expenditure by the spending departments, civil and military, and is responsible for personnel questions throughout the Civil Service. The Treasury presents the estimate of all the Civil Departments to Parliament, but, after presentation, the responsibility for defending them in Parliament rests with the Parliamentary Heads of the Departments. The control of the Treasury is nominally in the hands of the Lords Commissioners consisting of the First Lord of the Treasury (who is also the Prime Minister), the Chancellor of the Exchequer and five Junior Lords. The Prime Minister and first Lord is not primarily concerned in the day-to-day aspects of Treasury business nor are the Junior Lords and the Parliamentary Secretary who are Government Whips in the House of Commons. The higher departmental direction of Treasury business devolves on the Chancellor of the Exchequer, who is assisted at Ministerial level by the Financial Secretary and the Economic Secretary.

In 1925, responsibility for United Kingdom's relations with the Dominions (as they were then known) was transferred from the Secretary of State for the Colonies to a newly created Office of Secretary of State for Dominions Affairs. The two posts were held by the same individual Minister until 1930. The title was changed in 1947 to Secretary of State for Commonwealth Relations. In August 1947, responsibility for the conduct of relations with India and Pakistan was transferred to the Secretary of State for Commonwealth Relations from the Secretary of State for India, the latter post being abolished.

The Commonwealth Relations Office is now the Department which, under the Secretary of State, conducts the United Kingdom Government's relations with the Governments of the other Members of the Commonwealth (Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, India, Pakistan, Ceylon, Ghana, the Federation of Malaya and the Federation of Nigeria) the Federation of Rhodesia and Nyasaland, the self-governing Colony of Southern Rhodesia, and the Irish Republic (which, though no longer a Member of the Commonwealth, is not treated as a foreign country). It maintains High Commissioners' Offices in the other Commonwealth countries and an Embassy in Dublin. #### COLONIAL OFFICE

Church House, Great Smith Street, S.W.1

The Colonial Office dates back to 1660, when a Committee of the Privy Council was appointed for "The Plantations", implying at this time the settlements in the West Indies and North America. A Secretary of State was first appointed in 1768, but with the end of the American War of Independence, in 1782, the office of Colonial Secretary was abolished and colonial affairs were managed from the Home Office until 1784 when a "Committee for Trade and Foreign Plantations" was set up. The War Department assumed responsibility for the Colonies from 1801 until the post of Secretary of State was revived in 1854. In 1907, a new department of the Colonial Office was set up to administer the affairs of the Dominions and the self-governing Colonies.

A separate Dominions Office was established in 1925, which became in 1947 the Commonwealth Relations Office.

INCOME TAX RATES AND DEATH DUTIES IN GREAT BRITAIN, 1960-1961

The standard rate of Income Tax in the United Kingdom (Great Britain and Northern Ireland) for the year 1960-1961 imposed by the Finance Act, 1960, is 7s. 9d. in the pound.

Age Exemption.—Single persons aged 65 and upwards and married couples where either spouse is over 65 are exempt from Income Tax if their total incomes do not exceed £275 or £440 respectively; certain marginal provisions apply to incomes immediately above the limits of £275 or £440.

Earned Income and Analogous Allowances.—Two-ninths of the first £4,005 and one-ninth of the next £5,940 of earned income; where total income does not exceed £300 a deduction of two-ninths of total income is allowed; persons aged 65 and upwards whose total income does not exceed £830 are allowed a deduction of two-ninths of total income; certain marginal provisions apply to incomes immediately above the limits of £300 or £830.

Personal Allowance.—Married man £240, other persons £140. Additional allowance for wife's earned income, 7/9ths of that income up to a maximum of £140. Additional allowance of £40 to widows and widowers entitled to child allowance but not to housekeeper allowance.

Child Allowance.—£100 for a child under 11 years of age, £125 for children of 11 to 16, and £150 for children over 16 if receiving full-time education, or, in certain circumstances, full-time vocational training.

Housekeeper Allowance.—£75 for a widower's or widow's housekeeper; an unmarried person's widowed mother or other female relative taking care of children; or, in certain circumstances, a female person employed or maintained to take charge of children.

Dependent Relative Allowance. Where incapacitated by old age or infirmity not exceeding £75. In certain other circumstances not exceeding £40.

The income remaining after deduction of these reliefs is known as the taxable income; the first £60 of taxable income is charged at 1/9 in the £, the next £150 at 4/3 in the £, the next £150 at 6/3 in the £ and the remainder at the standard rate. Where the taxable income includes earned income of the wife, the amounts of taxable income chargeable at the reduced rates of 1/9, 4/3 and 6/3 in the £ may in certain circumstances be increased to £120, £300 and £300 respectively. Certain relief from tax is given in respect of life insurance premiums paid, in accordance with statutory provisions.

A portion of the tax payable by individuals for years 1941-42 to 1945-46 has been earmarked as a Post War Credit to be made available to the Taxpayer at a date to be determined. The Post War Credit for all five years is now being made available to men taxpayers aged 63 and over and to women taxpayers aged 58 and over. It is also available to persons falling within certain categories of hardship defined by regulation, to persons who hold credit as beneficiary of a deceased person and to a trustee in bankruptcy of a bankrupt holder.

SURTAX

On incomes of individuals in excess of £2,000 a further charge or tax is imposed, called the Surtax, which is payable as a deferred instalment of Income Tax on the 1st January following the year of assessment. Thus Surtax in respect of the year 1959-60 will be payable on the 1st January 1961. In computing the income on which Surtax is charged deduction is allowed of the personal allowances (other than the earned income allowance) which are given for Income Tax, to the extent that they exceed the basic single person's allowance of £140. The additional rates charged on these incomes begin at 2s.0d. in the £ on the first £500 of the excess over £2,000, and rise by steps to the rate of 10s.0d. in the £ payable on the excess over £15,000.

PROFITS TAX

The tax introduced in 1937 as the National Defence Contribution has, as from 1 January, 1947, been renamed the Profits Tax. The Profits Tax is imposed on the profits of all trades or businesses (excluding professions); as from 1st January, 1947 it applies only to corporate bodies and unincorporated societies and as from that date investment income is included in computing profits. As from 1st April, 1960, the rate of tax is 12½% on both distributed and undistributed profits. If the profits are less than £2,000, no tax is payable. If the profits exceed £2,000 but are less than £12,000, an abatement is allowed.

DOUBLE TAXATION RELIEF

Relief from United Kingdom income tax (including surtax) and profits tax is allowed in respect of taxes of a similar nature in Commonwealth or foreign countries.

As between the United Kingdom and Canada there is a special arrangement, signed on 5th June 1946, under which certain classes of income derived from one country by a resident of the other country are exempt from tax in the former country. Where both countries continue to tax, full relief for the double taxation is given by the country of residence of the taxpayer. The United Kingdom has similar arrangements with the United States and a number of other countries.

Where no such arrangement is in operation, a person resident in the United Kingdom is entitled to full relief in respect of tax paid in the country in which income arises. This new relief supersedes a previously existing scheme in respect of taxes paid in Commonwealth or foreign countries.

BRITISH CUSTOMS DUTIES ON IMPORTS

Under the British Import Duties Act, 1958, customs duties at various rates are applied to a very wide range of goods.

Duty is also chargeable under other enactments, the main classes of goods liable being Beer, Hydrocarbon Oils, Spirits, Sugar, Tobacco and Wine.

Goods (except Hydrocarbon Oils) of Canadian origin, which fulfil the conditions of Commonwealth Preference referred to below, are admitted either free of duty or at a preferential rate.

Schedules of rates of duty are included in the "Customs and Excise Tariff of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland," published periodically by H. M. Stationery Office, York House, Kingsway, London, W.C. 2, with amendments.

COMMONWEALTH PREFERENCE

The general conditions governing admission of imported goods to Commonwealth Preference are that the goods must be shown to the satisfaction of the Commissioners of Customs and Excise to have been (a) consigned to the United Kingdom from the Commonwealth preference area and (b) grown, produced or manufactured in the Commonwealth preference area.

PURCHASE TAX

The United Kingdom Purchase Tax is a single-stage sales tax charged at ad valorem rates on specified classes of goods. In general, liability to tax arises when the goods pass from the wholesaler to the retailer. Manufacturers and wholesale merchants dealing in chargeable goods must be registered. This enables them to deal with one another freely in the goods, or to export them without liability to tax. Tax becomes chargeable when the goods are sold by the registered manufacturer or wholesaler to an unregistered person, generally the retailer, or where there is no retail stage, to the public.

Purchase Tax is levied on chargeable goods imported into the United Kingdom, with the exception of goods imported for a registered wholesale merchant or a registered manufacturer as stock for his business or as materials. Such imported goods would become chargeable with tax (in the same way as goods of Full information is given in Customs Notice 27A which may be obtained from the Secretary, Customs and Excise, King's Beam House, Mark Lane, London, E.C.3, from any Collector of Customs and Excise in the United Kingdom or from United Kingdom Commercial Representatives overseas; also from the Department of Trade and Commerce, International Trade Relations Branch, Ottawa, Ontario.

IMPORT LICENCES

Under the Import of Goods (Control) Order, 1954, no goods (other than most goods consigned from the Channel Islands) may be imported into the United Kingdom except under the authority of a licence granted by the Board of Trade. Separate licences are not, however, required for limited lists of goods consigned from all countries or specified countries respectively which have been included in the Open General Licence.

Details of the goods covered by this Open General Licence are published from time to time in the Board of Trade Journal and in "Notices to Importers" issued by the Tariff and Import Division of the Board of Trade, Horse Guards Ave., London, S.W.1.

United Kingdom origin) if subsequently sold by the registered trader to an unregistered person.

The tax was first imposed by the Finance (No. 2) Act, 1940, and came into operation on 21st October, 1940, at two rates—16½% and 33½% of the wholesale value of the goods.

The groups of goods chargeable with Purchase Tax and the Statutory exemptions from the tax are defined in the Second Schedule to the Finance Act 1958, as amended. At present (June 1960) there are four rates ranging from 5% to 50% of the wholesale value.

Latest information about chargeable goods is contained in Notice No. 78, and about the tax generally in Notice No. 77, obtainable from the Commissioners of Customs and Excise, King's Beam House, Mark Lane, London E.C. 3.

Home: Portsmouth, Chatham, Devonport and Rosyth.

Abroad: Gibraltar and Singapore.

In addition to the Commanders-in-Chief of the Fleets and establishments abroad, there is a Commander-in-Chief in charge of each of the Home Ports (Portsmouth, Chatham and Devonport) and of the ships and establishments in his Command. Chaplains, Doctors, Dentists and Instructor Officers are offered short service commissions on completion of their professional training, with opportunities of obtaining a permanent commission.

The majority of Fleet Air Arm pilots and observers also serve on short service commissions. These officers enter for a period of 12 years on the Supplementary List with the opportunity of obtaining a permanent commission on that list or of resigning on completion of 8 years with a gratuity of £1,500. The gratuity of an officer leaving after 12 years is £4,000. There is also a 5-year commission, with £675 gratuity, for aircrew employed on helicopter duties only.

THE BRITISH ARMY

HISTORICAL

Parliament's consent to the maintenance of an army was established in the seventeenth century as a result of a struggle between the Commons and the Stuarts. The standing army became a national institution under Charles II, and the Mutiny Act, passed at the accession of William III, in 1689, formed the basis of army discipline. The Mutiny Act, after enlargement and change from time to time, is now replaced by the Army Act, constitutional control being assured by the Army and Air Force (Annual) Act, which until the passing of the Army Act, 1955, and the Revision of the Army and Air Force Acts (Transitional Provisions) Act, 1955, was passed by Parliament to maintain the Army Act in force for one year. The Army Act, 1955, came into force on 1st January 1957 and may be annually renewed by Order in Council for five consecutive years before a further Act of Parliament is required.

ORGANIZATION

The British Army is made up of (a) the Regular Army and the Royal Army Reserve, and (b) the Territorial Army.

The Secretary of State for War is the President of the Army Council. Other members of the Army Council are responsible for operations, organization, personal matters, logistics and finance.

The British Army at home and overseas is divided into commands, of which the more important are commanded by generals or lieutenant-generals, who control a number of districts or areas and the fighting formations in their localities.

In war the largest single formation is an Army Group, commanded by a General and consisting of two or more corps which each consist of a varying number of divisions. Additional supporting and administrative units are held in Corps Troops for allocation in support of Brigade Groups as required.

Divisional headquarters are capable of commanding a varying number of brigade groups of any type, according to the situation. The number of brigade groups under a divisional headquarters will not normally exceed four.

The basic fighting formation of the British Army is the brigade group. There are three types of brigade groups, armoured, infantry, and parachute, each of which consists of a number of units of all arms permanently allocated. They contain sufficient administrative units to cater for their normal day to day needs. Brigade groups are normally under command of a divisional headquarters but are capable, when necessary, of operating direct under corps control.

Besides the major fighting arms—Royal Armoured Corps, Royal Artillery, Royal Engineers and Infantry—there are a number of technical and specialist corps.

THE REGULAR ARMY

The Regular Army comprises officers and other ranks commissioned or enlisted for full-time service.

Officers may hold Regular, Short Service or National Service commissions. The normal regular engagement for men is a 22 year engagement with the right on giving the prescribed notice, to leave the Colours on completion of six years service and thereafter at each successive three year point of the engagement. Men in certain categories (which include those enlisted while serving as national service men) have the additional right to leave the Colours on completion of three years service provided they give the prescribed notice. A man who terminates his Colour service is required to serve in the regular reserve for periods of three to six years according to the point at which he terminates his Colour service.

Men between the ages of 18 and 26 years (doctors up to 30 years of age) called up for service under the National Service Acts are required to complete two years whole-time service in the Regular Army and three and a half years' part-time service in the Army Emergency Reserve or the Territorial Army. National service men may be appointed to commissions for all or part of their national service liability.

RESERVE FORCES

The Regular Army Reserve of Officers is composed of retired Regular Army Officers and volunteer members who are liable for reserve service up to ages which vary according to their rank and corps; and also of National Service and certain other officers who have completed their active list service but who have a liability for service under the Navy, Army and Air Force Reserves Act, 1954 and 1959, up to 30th June 1964 or the age of 45 years whichever is earlier.

The Royal Army Reserve is a reserve of warrant officers, non-commissioned officers and men and comprises the Regular Reserve, the Army Emergency Reserve and the Army General Reserve. The Regular Reserve consists of men who engage or are transferred for a period in this Reserve, having completed a period of service with the Colours. Members of the Royal Army Reserve are liable to be called out by Royal Proclamation for service in any part of the world in the case of imminent danger or great emergency.

The Army General Reserve is comprised of national service men who have completed their whole time and part time service. Members of this Reserve are unpaid and have no liability for training. Reserve liability ends on attaining the age of 45 years.

The role of the Army Emergency Reserve is to provide certain communications, technical and administrative services required in an emergency. It consists of volunteers and part-time national service men and is organized partly in units and partly in general pools.

THE TERRITORIAL ARMY

The Territorial Army is virtually an all volunteer, part-time force. It does, however, require a small permanent staff of regular officers, men and women posted for terms of duty from units of the Regular Army. Territorial Army units are brought up to establishment strength with allotted national service men who do not, however, take any part in Territorial activities in peace. Each Territorial Unit is based on and draws its recruits from a particular area of the country.

The Territorial Army can only be called out on permanent service in the event of actual or apprehended attack, but in the event of war may be sent anywhere at home or abroad.

WOMEN'S CORPS

Queen Alexandra's Royal Army Nursing Corps is a corps of officers and soldiers who, under the direction of its Matron-in-Chief, nurse Army personnel and their families in all parts of the world. Its officers also train other ranks of the corps and of the Royal Army Medical Corps in nursing duties.

The Women's Royal Army Corps provide officers and other ranks for a wide range of trades and employments in all theatres releasing men for combatant duties in the Army.

THE CADET FORCES

The Cadet Forces consist of the Basic and Army Sections of the Combined Cadet Force (C.C.F.), which also has Royal Navy and Royal Air Force Sections, and the Army Cadet Force (A.C.F.). Both are entirely voluntary and cater for boys between 14 and 18 years, the C.C.F. in school contingents and the A.C.F. in units raised both by schools and by geographical areas.

THE ROYAL AIR FORCE

The Royal Air Force is administered by the Air Council which consists of:

The Secretary of State for Air (President of the Air Council).

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State (Vice-President),

The Chief of the Air Staff,

The Air Member for Personnel,

The Air Member for Supply and Organisation,

The Permanent Under-Secretary of State (Secretary).

Additional members:

The Vice-Chief of the Air Staff,

Deputy Chief of the Air Staff.

The Secretary of State is responsible to Her Majesty the Queen and Parliament for all the business of the Air Council.

THE AIR MINISTRY

The Air Ministry is organised in five departments, as below:

The Department of the Chief of the Air Staff (C.A.S.).

The Chief of the Air Staff is the senior Air Member of Council and principal adviser of the Secretary of State on all the Service aspects of the administration of the Royal Air Force. He is responsible for all questions of Air Force policy and planning, for advice on the conduct of air operations for all training other than technical training, and for the fighting efficiency of the Royal Air Force. He is assisted by the Vice-Chief of the Air Staff, the Deputy Chief of the Air Staff, and the Assistant Chiefs of the Air Staff, each of whom is responsible for certain duties.

The Department of the Air Member for Personnel (A.M.P.).

The Air Member for Personnel is responsible for the personnel policy and administration, other than training and establishments, of the R.A.F., its reserves and auxiliaries, and the Women's R.A.F. and the Air Training Corps. This includes questions of manpower; conditions of service for all types of R.A.F. and W.R.A.F. personnel; discipline; ceremonial, honours and awards; appointments; exits, promotions and postings; and casualties. He is also responsible for the welfare of R.A.F. and W.R.A.F. personnel including the religious, educational and medical services.

The Department of the Air Member for Supply and Organisation (A.M.S.O.).

The Air Member for Supply and Organisation is responsible for the organisation of the Royal Air Force; for the provision of equipment, stores and foodstuffs; for transportation; and for works, buildings and land; and technical training and technical services of the R.A.F.

The Department of the Permanent Under-Secretary of State (P.U.S.).

The Permanent Under-Secretary of State is the Accounting Officer of the Air Ministry and as such is responsible for financial advice and for the control of all expenditure; for accounting to Parliament for the expenditure of public money and stores; and for the negotiation and placing of contracts. He is also Secretary of the Air Council and in that capacity is responsible for the efficient working of the Air Ministry as a Department of State, for Parliamentary and legal business and for public relations.

The Meteorological Office is organised as part of the Air Ministry. It is responsible for meteorological research and for supplying meteorological information to all users, including units of the Royal Air Force.

UNITED KINGDOM COMMANDS

The Commands of the R.A.F. in the United Kingdom are as follows:

Bomber Command, its function is defined by its title; it also controls photographic reconnaissance units.

Fighter Command. Responsible for the control of offensive and defensive fighter operations; also for operational control of Royal Aux. Air Force units and the Royal Observer Corps.

Coastal Command. Responsible for the safeguarding of sea communications in the Atlantic and British home waters in conjunction with the Royal Navy; also for meteorological reconnaissance, and air/sea rescue.

Transport Command. Responsible for providing mobility to the strategic reserve and the study, development and training of all air transport operations, including airborne assaults; the organisation and control of air transport operations in support of the R.A.F. and other services; and for operations along the trunk routes, including flight delivery of aircraft between theatres.

Flying Training Command. Responsible for the training of flying personnel. Also controls the Royal Air Force College, Cranwell, the R.A.F. Flying College, Manby (a specialist Flying Training Unit for officers of all the Commonwealth Air Forces, which combines certain aspects of the work of the discontinued Empire Flying School, the Empire Air Navigation School and the Empire Air Armament School), the Air Training Corps and Royal Air Force Section of the Combined Cadet Force, and various schools for the training of instructors in flying, navigation and the use of weapons.

Technical Training Command. Responsible for the training of ground personnel. Also controls the R.A.F. Technical College, in which the specialist training of technical officers is carried out.

Maintenance Command. Responsible for the storage and issue of the whole range of equipment used by the R.A.F.

Signals Command. Responsible for the greater part of the signals organization of the Royal Air Force, and for development of methods and equipment.

OVERSEAS COMMANDS

Overseas Commands are forces of various types of Squadrons and Service Units assigned to specific areas. The main overseas Commands of the R.A.F. are the Middle East Air Force, the Far East Air Force, and the 2nd Tactical Air Force. (This latter Force until September 1, 1951, was called the British Air Forces of Occupation, Germany, but following the decision that the operational resources of B.A.F.O. should be placed at the disposal of the Supreme Commander, Allied Powers in Europe, the role of the Command became primarily that of a tactical air force. It was therefore considered appropriate to restore the historical name of 2nd Tactical Air Force. On January 1, 1959 the Command was re-named Royal Air Force, Germany [Second Tactical Air Force]).

N.A.T.O. The forces of the R.A.F. committed to N.A.T.O. are the 2nd Tactical Air Force, the Canberra light-bomber force in Bomber Command, Coastal Command and maritime aircraft in Malta.

Women's Royal Air Force. Following the decision that the Women's Forces were to be continued on a voluntary basis as a permanent feature of the Forces of the Crown, provision was made under the Army and Air Force (Women's Service) Act, 1948, which was brought into operation on 1st February, 1949, for women to be commissioned and enlisted in the Royal Air Force and its reserves and auxiliaries. Women officers and airwomen accepted, under the new conditions, for the Royal Air Force are fully integrated into that force and are not organised as a separate corps.

The Air Force Act applies to such women in the same way as it applies to men, subject to adaptations and modifications made by Order in Council.

The Royal Auxiliary Air Force and the R.A.F. Volunteer Reserve are voluntary organisations in which men and women render part-time service while continuing to follow their civilian occupations.

The Royal Observer Corps is a uniformed civilian body which is a vital part of Fighter Command's raid reporting and fighter control system. The duties of the members, who serve on a spare-time basis in peace, include the identification and plotting of aircraft flying over Great Britain and monitoring radio activity in nuclear war.

The Air Training Corps gives boys of 14 and over experience in gliding and air matters, with special advantages if they join the Royal Air Force.

BRITAIN'S AUXILIARY AND NATIONAL SERVICES

A list of Civil Defence organizations, which were active during World War II, with descriptions, names and addresses of directors, etc., was included in the Canadian Almanac for 1945 and previous years.

CIVIL DEFENCE

Civil Defence (established 1949) is part of Britain's plan to improve defensive measures by enrolling volunteers to form the nucleus of a national auxiliary service.

The Services concerned are the Civil Defence Corps. The Auxiliary Fire Service, the Industrial Civil Defence Service, the National Hospital Service Reserve and the Special Constabulary.

The first four train recruits (men and women) as part-time volunteers in peace-time for service if war should break out. The Special Constabulary provides training for recruits to assist the regular Police in peace as well as to establish additional trained reinforcements in emergency.

The Civil Defence Corps is a Crown service for which the Home Secretary and the Secretary of State for Scotland are responsible. Its local organisation is a function of the local authorities. Each division (outside the County of London which has its own arrangements in conjunction with the Metropolitan Boroughs) comprises five sections: Headquarters, Warden, Rescue, Ambulance and First Aid and Welfare. In Scotland, where there is no separate Ambulance and First Aid Section, ambulance services are provided by the National Hospital Service Reserve, and casualty collecting is a Warden duty.

Civil Defence Staff College and training schools have been established for training Civil Defence Officers and Instructors. The National Hospital Service Reserve (recruited by the Ministry of Health and Dept. of Health for Scotland) concentrates the available medical and nursing man-power on the hospitals in co-operation with the St. John Ambulance Brigade (the St. Andrew's Ambulance Assoc. in Scotland) and the British Red Cross.

The new Malta constitution, promulgated under the authority of the Malta (Letters Patent) Act, 1959, came into force on 15th April, 1959. The constitution is contained in two instruments—the Malta (Constitution) Order in Council, 1959 (dated 24th March, 1959), and the Malta Royal Instructions, 1959 (dated 30th March, 1959).

The Order in Council provides for the office of Governor, and institutes an Executive Council to consist of three ex officio members (Chief Secretary, Legal Secretary, Financial Secretary) and nominated members, of whom at least three must hold public office. The names of the nominated members were announced by the Governor on 15th April; three official and four unofficial members have been appointed, all of whom are Maltese.

The Governor has power to enact ordinances, which are subject to disallowance by Her Majesty; Her Majesty reserves to herself ultimate power to make laws for the peace, order and good government of Malta.

The remainder of the Order in Council is concerned with the judicature, the public service, and finance. The English and Maltese languages are confirmed as the official languages, and full freedom of conscience and religious worship are reiterated in Section 49.

The Royal Instructions contain mainly administrative provisions, but Section 5 sets out a list of ordinances which may not be enacted without the prior permission of the United Kingdom Government.

IMPERIAL AND COMMONWEALTH CONFERENCES

During the celebration of the Golden Jubilee of Queen Victoria in 1887, the first Colonial Conference was held at London. The principal subjects discussed were defence, postal arrangements, and cable services. Delegates were present from the United Kingdom, Newfoundland, Canada, New South Wales, Tasmania, the Cape of Good Hope, South Australia, New Zealand, Victoria, Queensland, West Australia, and Natal.

In 1894, the Canadian Government convened a Colonial Conference at Ottawa, chiefly to consider preferential tariff arrangements within the Empire. Representatives were present from The United Kingdom, Canada, New South Wales, Victoria, Queensland, South Australia, Tasmania, New Zealand, Cape Colony, and Fiji.

Further Colonial Conferences were held* in 1897, 1902, and 1907. At the 1907 meeting, the name Imperial Conference was adopted for future use.

In 1909, a special Conference on Naval and Military Defence took place.

A Conference on Copyright, subsidiary to the Imperial Conference, was held in 1910.

An Imperial Conference in 1911 discussed the organization of Imperial Conferences and of the Colonial Office, treaty arrangements, establishment of an Imperial Court of Appeal, migration, naturalization, cables, and shipping, and recommended the appointment of a Royal Commission to report on the natural resources of the Empire.

In 1917, the Imperial War Cabinet discussed the conduct of the war and possible peace arrangements, while the Imperial War Conference considered post-war problems, recommended full representation of India at future Imperial Conferences, and proposed that a special Imperial Conference be held after the war to consider constitutional relations, "based upon a full recognition of the Dominions as autonomous nations of an Imperial Commonwealth and of India as an important portion of the same".

Further meetings of the Imperial War Cabinet and Imperial War Conference took place in 1918.

In 1921, a Conference of Prime Ministers and Representatives of the United Kingdom, the Dominions and India was held, which discussed questions of foreign policy, defence, migration, nationality, air services and shipping, wireless communications, and the position of Indians in the Empire.

The Imperial Conference of 1923 discussed foreign policy, defence, and various other subjects, and made recommendations on treaty procedure. An Imperial Economic Conference took place simultaneously. These were the first meetings attended by delegates from the recently formed Irish Free State.

In 1926, an Imperial Conference defined the position of Great Britain and the Dominions as that of "autonomous communities within the British Empire, equal in status, in no way subordinate one to another in any aspect of their domestic or external affairs, though united by a common allegiance to the Crown, and freely associated as members of the British Commonwealth of Nations". This Conference also defined the position of Governors-General as representatives of the Crown, not of the United Kingdom Government, made further recommendations on treaty procedure and the general conduct of foreign policy and proposed the appointment of special bodies to inquire into the question of the operation of Dominion legislation and the question of merchant shipping legislation. In addition, it discussed foreign relations, defence, migration, and various economic matters.

A Conference on the Operation of Dominion Legislation and Merchant Shipping Legislation, held in 1929 as a result of the recommendation of the Imperial Conference of 1926, drew up proposals which resulted in the Statute of Westminster and in decentralization of legislation on merchant shipping.

The Imperial Conference of 1930 adopted these proposals and discussed numerous other matters relating to defence, nationality, foreign relations, and economic policy.

In 1932, an Imperial Economic Conference met at Ottawa and concluded trade agreements among the countries represented. Other economic matters were also considered, and a recommendation was made for the appointment of a committee to consider means of facilitating economic consultation and co-operation.

As a result of this recommendation, the Imperial Committee on Economic Consultation and Co-operation met in 1933 and issued a report on existing Commonwealth bodies concerned with economic co-operation, and the principles which should be adopted in this field.

In 1935, during the celebration of the Silver Jubilee of King George V, an informal Prime Ministers' Meeting took place to discuss foreign affairs and other matters of common concern.

An Imperial Conference met in 1937 and discussed questions of foreign relations, defence, and economic affairs.

The outbreak of the Second World War prevented the holding of further formal conferences, though in 1939 cabinet ministers from Canada, Australia, New Zealand, and South Africa conferred with United Kingdom ministers on means of co-ordinating their countries' war activities.

In 1944, a Prime Ministers' Meeting was held to discuss war and post-war questions.

A Commonwealth Telecommunications Conference, 1945, recommended the transfer to public ownership of the external telecommunications services of the countries represented.

Another Prime Ministers' Meeting in 1946 discussed draft peace treaties, the future of Germany, methods of consultation among Commonwealth countries, defence liaison arrangements, and economic and welfare co-operation in Southeast Asia and the South Pacific.

In 1947, a Conference was held at Canberra among representatives of Australia, the United Kingdom, Canada, New Zealand, South Africa, India, Pakistan, and Burma, to exchange views on the peace settlement with Japan.

A Prime Ministers' Meeting in 1948 discussed international relations, defence, economic affairs, and methods of consultation among Commonwealth governments.

In 1949, a Prime Ministers' Meeting was held to consider the possibility of India's remaining a member of the Commonwealth after becoming a republic. At the close of the meeting a declaration was issued by the Prime Ministers, in which the Government of India affirmed India's desire to continue her membership of the Commonwealth, and her acceptance of the King as the symbol of the free association of its independent member nations and as such the Head of the Commonwealth; while the Governments of the other countries of the Commonwealth accepted and recognized India's continuing membership.

In 1950, a Meeting on Foreign Affairs was held at Colombo among Commonwealth ministers dealing with that subject. It recommended the establishment of a Consultative Committee by Commonwealth governments interested in Southeast Asia, to encourage its economic improvement and thereby foster political stability. In addition, the Conference considered the situation created by the emergence of a Communist government in China, reviewed the recommendations of the Canberra Conference, 1947, on a peace settlement with Japan, and examined the situation in Western Europe.

The Consultative Committee on Co-operative Economic Development in South and Southeast Asia held its first meeting at Sydney, Australia, in May, 1950, and has met at frequent intervals since that time. The meeting of October, 1954, took place at Ottawa. The membership of the Committee was at first limited to Commonwealth countries, but has since been broadened to include others. Under the auspices of the Committee, the governments of South and Southeast Asia have drawn up programmes for economic development, to be financed in part by themselves and in part by assistance from other countries. A technical assistance scheme was also established.

In January, 1951, a Prime Ministers' Meeting was held to review the international situation. It discussed particularly the situation in the Far East, the Middle East, and Europe. Economic problems caused by shortages of raw materials were also discussed.

In June, 1951, the defence ministers of the United Kingdom, Australia, New Zealand, and the Union of South Africa, and a representative of Southern Rhodesia, met to consider certain defence problems in regions of common concern, including the Middle East. The Canadian Government was represented by an observer.

In September, 1951, a meeting of Commonwealth ministers concerned with supply and production discussed problems of the distribution of raw materials and manufactured goods.

There was a Commonwealth Economic Conference in 1952, at which the delegations were headed by Prime Ministers. This Conference agreed to seek the co-operation of the United States and European countries in a plan incorporating international action for the progressive removal of import restrictions by both creditor and debtor countries and the restoration by progressive stages of the convertibility of sterling when conditions permitted. It was also agreed that development in the sterling area should be concentrated on projects contributing to the improvement of the area's balance of payments with the rest of the world; and the United Kingdom undertook to try to provide additional capital for Commonwealth development by facilitating the financing of such projects, and to make sterling available for loan by the International Bank for certain projects.

After the Coronation in 1953, there was a Prime Ministers' Meeting which discussed foreign affairs and economic developments. Relations with the Soviet Union, the Korean negotiations, and the position in the Middle East received particular attention.

A Prime Ministers' Meeting in 1955 surveyed international affairs. It was agreed that Pakistan, which was planning to adopt a republican form of government, should continue to be a full member of the Commonwealth. Regional meetings on defence matters were held during the Prime Ministers' Meeting.

A Commonwealth Prime Ministers' Meeting in 1956 reviewed the current state of international affairs, discussing in particular recent developments within the Soviet Union and the situation in the Middle East, the Far East and South East Asia. The Prime Ministers expressed their agreement that Ceylon should continue a member of the Commonwealth after the proposed adoption of a republican constitution.

A Prime Ministers' Meeting in 1957, at which Ghana was represented for the first time, discussed international questions of common concern. The Prime Ministers agreed on the need to strengthen and improve the United Nations; noted the progress of discussions on disarmament and agreed that economic and social progress must be the foundation for stability in the Middle East, but that solutions for the immediate problems of Arab-Israeli tension, the Arab refugees and the Suez canal should be sought by all practicable means. Proposals for the creation of the European free trade area and the European common market were discussed.

Finance Ministers and other delegates representing eleven Commonwealth countries met in September, 1957, at Mount Tremblant, Quebec, where they agreed to recommend to their governments that a full scale Commonwealth Trade and Economic Conference should be held the following year.

The Commonwealth Trade and Economic Conference met in Montreal from September 15 to 26, 1958. It was attended by delegations from all the Commonwealth countries—the United Kingdom, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, India, Pakistan, Ceylon, Ghana, The Federation of Malaya, and the Federation of Rhodesia and Nyasaland. The following Colonial territories were represented in an advisory capacity to the United Kingdom delegation: Nigeria, The West Indies, Kenya, Tanganyika, Uganda, Sierra Leone and Hong Kong. The central theme of the Conference was "an expanding Commonwealth in an expanding world". Decisions were taken and understandings were reached under the following headings: Trade, Commodity Problems, Agriculture, Finance, Development, Education, Telecommunications, and Consultation.

Periodic meetings of Commonwealth Finance Ministers have been held since the Second World War to consider economic problems, chiefly related to the Sterling area. Such Conferences were held in London in 1949 and 1952, in Canberrra in 1954, and in Washington, U.S.A. in 1956.

In addition to these major conferences among heads of governments and the subsidiary meetings arising directly out of them, there have been numerous conferences of experts in special fields. These include the following: Imperial Statistical Conference, 1920; Imperial Entomological Conference, 1920; British Empire Forestry Conference, 1920; Imperial Customs Conference, 1921; British Empire Forestry Conference, Ottawa, 1923; Imperial Mycological Conference, 1924; Imperial Entomological Conference, 1925; Imperial Education Conference, 1927; Imperial Agricultural Research Conference, 1928; Conference on Cable and Wireless Communications, 1928; British Empire Forestry Conference, Australia and New Zealand, 1928; Empire Survey Officers' Conference, 1928; Conference of Empire Meteorologists, 1929; Empire Survey Officers' Conference, 1931; Conference of British Commonwealth Statisticians, Ottawa, 1935; British Empire Forestry Conference, South Africa, 1935; Empire Survey Officers' Conference, 1935; Conference of Empire Meteorologists, 1935; British Commonwealth Scientific Conference, 1936; Commonwealth Telegraph Conference, Sydney, 1942; British Commonwealth Scientific Conference, 1946; Conference of Commonwealth Meteorologists, 1946; British Commonwealth Conference on Nationality and Citizenship, 1947; Commonwealth Conference on Social Insurance, 1947; British Empire Forestry Conference, 1947; British Commonwealth Survey Officers' Conference, 1947; Conference of British Commonwealth Statisticians, Australia, 1948; British Commonwealth Survey Officers' Conference, 1951; British Commonwealth Scientific Conference, Australia, Canada, 1952 and Australia and New Zealand, 1957.

The Commonwealth Parliamentary Association (formerly the Empire Parliamentary Association) consists of representatives of the Commonwealth parliaments, and has branches in the countries represented. It was organized in 1911 and has held frequent meetings in various Commonwealth countries; in 1952 it met at Ottawa.

WORLD ORGANIZATIONS

THE UNITED NATIONS

The United Nations is a world organization for the maintenance of peace and security and for the promotion of the welfare of humanity. The Charter was signed on June 26, 1945 and came into force on October 24, 1945.

Through a series of conferences, at Dumbarton Oaks (August-October 1944), at Yalta (February 1945) and at San Francisco (April-June 1945), the Charter of the United Nations was produced.

The main organs of the United Nations are: the General Assembly, the Security Council, the Economic and Social Council, the Trusteeship Council, the International Court of Justice, the Secretariat. Subsidiary organs are established as and when required.

The General Assembly is composed of representatives of 82 Member States with one vote each. It is the only organ of the United Nations on which all Members are represented. It is a deliberative body where the Members have the opportunity to exchange views and state their problems. The Assembly in November 1950 decided that if the Security Council, because of lack of unanimity of the permanent members, fails to exercise its primary responsibility for maintaining international peace and security in any case where there appears to be a threat to peace, breach of the peace, or act of aggression, the Assembly may consider the matter immediately with a view to making recommendations to Members for collective measures, including, in the case of a breach of the peace or act of aggression, the use of armed force when necessary to restore peace. Decisions are taken by a two-thirds majority on important questions and a simple majority on other questions. The Assembly deals with its work through seven Main Committees on which all Members have the right to be represented: First Committee (Political and Security, including the regulation of armaments); Special Political Committee; Second Committee (Economic and Financial); Third Committee (Social, Humanitarian, and Cultural); Fourth Committee (Trusteeship, including non-self-governing territories); Fifth Committee (Administrative and Budgetary); Sixth Committee (Legal). In addition, the UN Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees in the Near East and the Office of the UN High Commissioner for Refugees, among other bodies, report to the General Assembly. The Assembly has also established procedural, standing and other ad hoc committees. C. S. A. Ritchie is Canada's permanent representative at United Nations headquarters in New York.

The Security Council is composed of five permanent members, China, France, the United Kingdom, the United States and the Soviet Union. In addition, there are six non-permanent members elected by the General Assembly for a term of two years. The principal function of the Security Council is to examine questions endangering the maintenance of international peace and security, and to adopt and apply means to solve dangerous international situations or disputes. Each member of the Security Council has one vote. Decisions on procedural matters are made by an affirmative vote of seven members. On all other matters an affirmative vote of seven members, including the concurring votes of the five permanent members, is required (unless, in certain circumstances, a permanent member abstains from voting). Thus, the negative vote of one permanent member is sufficient to prevent the taking of a substantive decision. This is the "veto" power.

The Charter provides that a Military Staff Committee, consisting of the Chiefs of Staff of the permanent members of the Security Council or their representatives is to advise and assist the Security Council on all questions relating to the Council's military requirements for the maintenance of international peace and security, the regulation of armaments or possible disarmament.

On 11 January 1952 the General Assembly established the Disarmament Commission to replace the Atomic Energy Commission and the Commission for Conventional Armaments and to combine the work of both. The Disarmament Commission, since 1959 has been composed of all the members of the United Nations.

The Economic and Social Council is composed of representatives of eighteen Member States elected by the General Assembly for a term of three years. Its function is to study and report on social and economic problems throughout the world, and to suggest means for their solution. Its decisions are taken by a simple majority vote. It is authorized to enter into agreements with specialized agencies for the purpose of bringing them into relationship with the United Nations. Such agreements are subject to approval by the General Assembly and the appropriate body of the specialized agency concerned. Agreements with the following agencies are in force: International Labour Organisation (ILO); Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations (FAO); United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO); World Health Organization (WHO); International Civil Aviation Organization (ICAO); International Bank for Reconstruction and Development; International Finance Corporation; International Monetary Fund; Universal Postal Union (UPU); International Telecommunication Union (ITU); World Meteorological Organization (WMO); and Inter-Governmental Maritime Consultative Organization (IMCO). An agreement has also been authorized with the International Trade Organization (ITO) if and when that body comes into existence. Though establishment of ITO and the bringing into operation of the Havana Charter, on which it was to be based, have not taken place, one of the main objectives of that Charter has been embodied in an international commercial treaty, known as the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT). Provision has been made for the establishment of a permanent Organization for Trade Cooperation (OTC) to administer GATT.

An International Atomic Energy Agency, to promote the peaceful uses of atomic energy, was formally established in July 1957. The Agency's working relationship with the United Nations has been determined in an agreement approved by the UN General Assembly and the Agency's General Conference in the autumn of 1957. This agreement provides that the Agency shall report annually to the General Assembly, and in addition submit reports to the Security Council "when appropriate" and to the Economic and Social Council on matters within its competence.

The Economic and Social Council is aided in its work by several expert bodies, called commissions and sub-commissions, which keep international problems in their respective fields under review. These bodies cover such questions as transport and communications, statistical, human rights, social, population, status of women, narcotic drugs and international commodity trade. The Council has also set up regional economic commissions for Europe, for Asia and the Far East, for Latin America, and for Africa. The United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF) also reports to the Council.

The Trusteeship Council consists of Members of the United Nations administering territories under trusteeship, those permanent members of the Security Council which do not administer trust territories, and as many other Members elected by the General Assembly for three-year terms as may be necessary to ensure that the total number of members in the Trusteeship Council is equally divided between those which administer trust territories and those which do not. Its decisions are taken by a simple majority vote.

The Trusteeship Council examines reports on Trust Territories annually submitted by the administering authorities; accepts petitions and examines them in consultation with the authorities; and provides for special or periodic visits to the Trust Territories.

The International Court of Justice is the principal judicial organ of the United Nations. It consists of fifteen members elected for a term of nine years by the General Assembly and by the Security Council voting independently.

The Secretariat, under a Secretary-General appointed by the General Assembly upon the recommendation of the Security Council, serves the United Nations. It is organized into a number of administrative units. Four of these are known as Offices of the Secretary-General because the work they perform engages the Secretary-General's responsibility in a more direct and personal way. These are the Executive Office of the Secretary-General, the Office of Legal Affairs, the Controller's Office and the Office of Personnel. There are also two Under-Secretaries for Special Political Affairs. Three of the units are Departments. These are the Department of Political and Security Council Affairs, the Department of Economic and Social Affairs and the Department of Trusteeship and Information from Non-Self-Governing Territories. In addition, there is an Office of Public Information, an Office of Conference Services and Office of General Services.

The permanent headquarters of the United Nations is situated in New York, N.Y.

UNITED NATIONS OFFICE OF PUBLIC INFORMATION New York, N.Y.

The Office carries out the information program of the United Nations. It provides facilities for the diffusion of information about the United Nations by press, radio, television, film, photographs and other media. It also helps develop information activities to supplement the services of existing agencies on as wide a geographical basis as possible, and cooperates with governments and non-governmental organizations in spreading knowledge of the United Nations and its related agencies in schools and other educational institutions. It provides information services for the correspondents accredited to the United Nations.

Booklets, pamphlets and other publications on all phases of United Nations activities are produced in many languages by the Office. It also facilitates the sale of United Nations publications, in local currencies, through sales agents throughout the world. To "ensure that peoples in all parts of the world receive as full information as possible about the United Nations", the Office has established information centres and offices in many of the principal capitals of the world.

Publications issued for the public may be obtained from the Queen's Printer, Ottawa.

INTERNATIONAL CIVIL AVIATION ORGANIZATION

The International Civil Aviation Organization came into being on April 4, 1947, when the required number of states (26) had ratified the Convention on International Civil Aviation.

The principal organs of the organization are the Assembly, composed of all 77 member states, which meets twice in three years; the Council, comprising of 21 members, which meets at short intervals; and the Secretariat, which is recruited on a broad international basis.

There are five subordinate bodies:

INTERNATIONAL LABOUR ORGANIZATION

HEADQUARTERS: GENEVA, SWITZERLAND

The International Labour Organization was set up in 1919 under the Peace Treaties concluding the First World War, to promote social justice and improve labour conditions through international action. It is an inter-governmental organization of 80 countries. Its organs are the International Labour Conference which normally meets annually; the International Labour Office; and the Governing Body which meets several times a year. National delegations to the Conference comprise, in addition to Government representation, direct representation of organized employers and workers from each member country. Since establishment, the International Labour Conference has adopted 114 conventions or draft treaties, many of which have been ratified by a considerable number of countries, as well as 112 formal recommendations: these instruments deal with a broad range of social and labour subjects.

INTERNATIONAL LABOUR OFFICE
Headquarters: Geneva, Switzerland

The Office is the secretariat of the Organization. It lends expert assistance to Member Governments on request, and issues reports and other publications on social and labour affairs in various areas. The Director-General is David A. Morse, a citizen of the U.S.A.

GOVERNING BODY

The Governing Body is the international executive of the Organization. It is made up of one Government representative from each of the ten member countries of chief industrial importance; of one Government representative from ten other member countries, of ten workers' representatives and ten employers' representatives, members in the three latter categories being elected by the Conference. Canada holds one of the non-elective Government seats, as one of the countries of chief industrial importance, the Canadian Government member being the Assistant Deputy Minister of Labour.

WESTERN EUROPEAN UNION

9 Grosvenor Place, London, S.W.1, England

The Brussels Treaty, signed in 1948 by Belgium, France, Luxembourg, the Netherlands and the United Kingdom, provided for collective self-defence and for collaboration in economic, social and cultural matters.

On May 6, 1955, this Treaty was extended to include the German Federal Republic and Italy and was revised to make it a more effective focus of European integration. The resulting organization was named "Western European Union".

It consists of a Council, meeting either at Ministerial level or, more frequently, at Ambassadorial level at the seat of the Organisation in London; of an Agency for the Control of Armaments, set up to ensure that the undertakings given by the German Federal Republic not to manufacture certain armaments are observed, and to control the level of armaments of all seven Member states on the mainland of Europe; of a Standing Armaments Committee which deals with the production and standardisation of armaments. Until 1st June 1963 when they were transferred to the Council of Europe, the Organization included a number of social and cultural committees set up to further collaboration between the Seven on such questions. There is also a Western European Union Parliamentary Assembly, which usually meets twice a year, composed of delegated members from the parliaments of all seven countries.

International secretariats serve the Council of W.E.U., the Agency for the Control of Armaments, and the Standing Armaments Committee.

Secretary-General, M. Louis Goffin.

Director of the Armaments Control Agency, Admiral E. Ferreri.

Head of the International Secretariat of the Standing Armaments Committee, General Pierre Brisac.

QUALIFICATIONS FOR ELECTORS IN DOMINION AND PROVINCIAL ELECTIONS

ELECTIONS FOR THE DOMINION HOUSE OF COMMONS

According to the Canada Elections Act, and subject to certain exceptions, the general rule as to the qualifications of electors at a Dominion election is that every person in Canada, man or woman, is qualified to vote and entitled to be registered as an elector on the list of electors for the polling division in which such person ordinarily resides at the time of the issuing of the writ ordering a Dominion election in the electoral district if such person (a) is of the full age of 21 years, or will attain the full age of 21 years on or before polling day at the appropriate pending election; (b) is a Canadian citizen or other British subject; (c) has been ordinarily resident in Canada for the twelve months preceding polling day at the appropriate pending election, and (d) at a by-election only, has continued to be ordinarily resident in the electoral district until polling day. Among persons disqualified are prisoners, and persons under restraint owing to mental disease.

Whenever an election is ordered an entire new list of electors is prepared, according to the Canada Elections Act, under the general direction of the Chief Electoral Officer, and supervision of a returning officer who is appointed for each electoral district. There are two classes of polling divisions which are called Urban and Rural. Generally speaking urban polling divisions are those comprised in cities and towns of over 5,000 population, the other polling divisions are rural. In urban polling divisions, a pair of enumerators, representing different political interests, is appointed for each polling division. They make a house-to-house visitation immediately after the issue of the writ for the appropriate pending election, to secure the necessary information to complete a list of electors for their polling division. In rural polling divisions, the list is similarly prepared by one rural enumerator. Writs for a Dominion election are issued about two months before the date fixed for polling day, except at by-elections when such writs may be issued about 6 weeks before polling day.

Chief Electoral Officer, Nelson J. Castonguay, Ottawa.

THE VICTORIA CROSS

THE VICTORIA CROSS was instituted by Queen Victoria at the close of the Crimean campaign, 1856. It is a Maltese cross, made of gun metal, with a Royal Crest in the centre and underneath it an escroll bearing the inscription "For Valour", and is awarded, irrespective of rank, to members of any branch of Her Majesty's services, either in the Imperial Forces or those of any British dominion, colony, dependency or protectorate, the Mercantile Marine, nurses or staffs of hospitals, or to civilians of either sex while serving in either regular or temporary capacity during naval, military, or air force operations. It is awarded only "for most conspicuous bravery or some daring or pre-eminent act of valour or self-sacrifice or extreme devotion to duty in the presence of the enemy." For additional conduct of similar bravery, a Bar is added. The ribbon was formerly red for the Army and blue for the Navy, but is now crimson for all services. An annuity of £10 a year accompanies the decoration, plus £5 a year for every Bar granted; payable to ranks below commission ranks from the date of the act which concerns the award. Navy, Army and Royal Air Force regulations provide for the annuity to be increased to the maximum of £75, including any other pension from public funds where officers and other ranks are incapable of earning a livelihood by reason of age or infirmity occasioned by a cause outside the recipient's control. Since June 17th, 1943, the financial responsibility has been assumed by the Canadian Government, and the pound sterling is deemed to have a value of $5.00 in Canadian currency where this is concerned.

HONOURS (CANADA)

For some years after Confederation awards were made of a few hereditary honours and some knight-hoods and companionships in orders of chivalry, and this policy continued until the end of the first Great War.

On May 22, 1919, during the premiership of the Rt. Hon. Robert L. Borden, a resolution adopted by the House of Commons requested His Majesty to refrain from granting titular honours to Canadian citizens in the future. This policy was reversed in 1933 when, during the premiership of the Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, the Canadian Government recommended a number of such awards, which were duly granted on New Year's Day, 1934. Although titular honours were again conferred in 1935, the new administration which took office later that year under the premiership of the Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King revived the previous policy of the Government of 1919, and no titular honours have been recommended or awarded since that time.

On July 24, 1942, a Special Committee on Honours and Decorations reported to the House as follows:

"As a result of their deliberations your Committee desire to make the following recommendations:

- (1) That His Majesty's subjects domiciled or ordinarily resident in Canada be eligible for the award of Honours and Decorations, including awards in the Orders of Chivalry, which do not involve titles.
- (2) That His Majesty's Government in Canada consider a submission to His Majesty the King, of proposals for the establishment of an Order limited in number but not involving a title, for which His Majesty's subjects domiciled or ordinarily resident in Canada shall alone be eligible."

During the second Great War a large number of decorations were awarded to members of the armed forces and to civilians for war service; in 1943 the Canada Medal was instituted but no awards were made. On July 1, 1946 the last Canadian honours list terminated decorations for war service for civilians. No awards in orders of chivalry have since been given to Canadian civilians. Recommendations are made from time to time for the award to civilians of decorations in recognition of exceptional bravery.

The arms are those of England, Scotland, Ireland and France, with a "difference" to mark them as Canadian, namely on the lower third of the shield, a sprig of maple on a silver shield. The crest is a lion holding in its paw a red maple leaf, a symbol of sacrifice. The supporters are, with some slight distinctions, the lion and unicorn of the Royal Arms; the lion upholds the Union Jack, and the unicorn the ancient banner of France.

The motto — A MARI USQUE AD MARE — "From sea to sea" — is an extract from the Latin version of verse 8 of the 72nd Psalm — "He shall have dominion also from sea to sea, and from the river unto the ends of the earth."

There is a tradition, that the Fathers of Confederation derived the designation "Dominion" from this verse.

PETITIONS TO THE HOUSE OF COMMONS

A petition to the House of Commons must be presented by a Member, and such Member shall be answerable that the petition does not contain "impertinent or improper matter". One person may petition the House of Commons. Petitions may be either written or printed. When there are three or more petitioners, the signatures of at least three shall be subscribed on the sheet containing the prayer of the petition.

Long usage both here and in the United Kingdom has sanctioned the rule that every petition should commence with the superscription "To the Honourable the House of Commons of Canada in Parliament assembled". Then should follow the formula "The Petition of the undersigned — humbly sheweth". The subject matter of the petition then follows in the third person throughout and each paragraph should commence with the word "That".

The conclusion should be the "prayer", briefly and clearly expressing the particular object which the petitioners have in view in coming before Parliament. The petition should close with the formal words "And your petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray".

PARLIAMENTARY REPRESENTATION

The Parliament of Canada comprises the Senate, being the Upper House, and the House of Commons.

THE SENATE

Senators are appointed for life; must be Canadian citizens or British subjects and 30 years of age; must own lands worth net $4,000 in the province which they represent, and must be worth $4,000 above all debts. They must be residents of the province for which appointed or of the electoral division in the Province of Quebec.

The Speaker is appointed by the Governor-General.

The Senate as originally constituted at Confederation consisted of 72 members. Through the addition of new provinces and the general growth of Canada it now has 102 members, the latest change in representation having been made March 31, 1949, with the admission of Newfoundland to Confederation. By provinces, representation is as follows: Newfoundland 6, Prince Edward Island 4, Nova Scotia 10, New Brunswick 10, Quebec 24, Ontario 24, Manitoba 6, Saskatchewan 6, Alberta 6, British Columbia 6: total 102.

THE HOUSE OF COMMONS

The members of the House of Commons are elected by the people. The ordinary legal limit of duration for each Parliament is five years, sitting at least once a year. The Speaker is elected by the House.

By virtue of Section 51 of the British North America Acts, 1867 to 1952, and pursuant to rules laid down therein, a redistribution measure is enacted by Parliament after each decennial census to adjust the representation in the House of Commons.

The Representation Act, 1952, increased the membership in the House of Commons from 262 to 265, effective at the general election held August 10, 1953.

Accordingly representation in the House of Commons for the 24th Parliament is as follows: Alberta 17; British Columbia 22; Manitoba 14; New Brunswick 10; Newfoundland 7; Nova Scotia 12; Ontario 85; Prince Edward Island 4; Quebec 75; Saskatchewan 17; Mackenzie District, N.W.T. 1; and the Yukon Territory 1; making a total of 265.

DEPARTMENT OF NATIONAL REVENUE

From Confederation on July 1, 1867, until May 17 1918, Customs and Inland Revenue Acts were administered by two separate government departments known as the Department of Customs, constituted by statute (31 Vic. Chap. 43), and the Department of Inland Revenue constituted by statute (31 Vic. Chap. 49). On May 18, 1918, by Order in Council these two Departments were amalgamated and combined under the name of the Department of Customs and Inland Revenue and under one Minister of the Crown.

The collection of Income Tax was placed under the control of the Minister of Customs and Excise on April 1, 1924, and by the Department of National Revenue Act (17 Geo. V. Chap. 34) the name was changed to the Department of National Revenue.

INCOME TAXES

(Imposed by Provincial Legislation)

CORPORATIONS

At present, the provinces of Ontario and Quebec levy taxes from corporations operating within their territorial limits. The other provinces have entered into tax rental agreements with the Government of Canada and receive in return a share of the tax collected under the Canadian Income Tax Act.

The provinces of Ontario and Quebec impose taxes based upon paid-up capital, places of business and net income. For the most part, the income taxes imposed by these provinces are allowed as a deduction from income tax otherwise payable to the Government of Canada.

INDIVIDUALS

The province of Quebec imposes a tax on the income of individuals resident in or carrying on business in Quebec. The Federal government allows a credit of 13% of the Federal income taxes payable for income taxes deemed payable in Quebec. None of the other provinces in Canada is presently imposing a tax on personal income.

Following is a list of the provincial tax acts to which reference should be made for complete details as to both personal and corporation income taxes levied by the provinces:

ROYAL CANADIAN MOUNTED POLICE

Honorary Commissioner, HER MAJESTY QUEEN ELIZABETH II

In 1873 the North West Mounted Police was constituted (36 Vic. Chap. 35) to provide Police protection in the unsettled portions of the North West. In 1904 the title "Royal" was given to the Force. In 1920 the Dominion Police was amalgamated with this Force and the name changed to "Royal Canadian Mounted Police." The headquarters was moved from Regina to Ottawa and the Force may now be called upon to perform duties in any portion of the Dominion. In 1928 the Royal Canadian Mounted Police absorbed the Saskatchewan Provincial Police and in 1932 the Provincial Police Forces of Alberta, Manitoba, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island were absorbed in like manner. During the year 1932, the Force also assumed the administration of the Preventive Service Branch of the Department of National Revenue. On August 1, 1950, the duties of the Newfoundland Rangers and certain members of the Newfoundland Constabulary were taken over by the R.C.M.P., and on the 15th of the same month the British Columbia Provincial Police were similarly absorbed. These arrangements were made by agreements between the respective Provincial Governments concerned and the Federal Government. The term of engagement in the Royal Canadian Mounted Police is five years. Recruits are trained at Regina, Saskatchewan and Rockcliffe (near Ottawa), Ontario. At a recent date the Force had 221 horses, 33 Police Service dogs, 219 Sleigh dogs, 1,443 cars, 148 trucks, 53 motorcycles, 16 aircraft, and 71 ships and boats. The strength including special constables, civilian employees and reserves was 7,950.

CANADA'S ARMED SERVICES

THE ROYAL CANADIAN NAVY

ROLE AND ORGANIZATION

The primary role of the Royal Canadian Navy is anti-submarine warfare. Because of the prospect of long-range submarines capable of launching nuclear missiles hundreds of miles off-shore against coastal and inland targets, the RCN and the RCAF have placed primary emphasis on the development of forward operational systems and new techniques for locating and dealing with hostile submarines.

The Royal Canadian Navy comes under the central authority of the Chief of the Naval Staff at Naval Headquarters in Ottawa. The Flag Officer, Atlantic Coast, at Halifax, N.S., and the Flag Officer, Pacific Coast, at Esquimalt, B.C., exercise operational and administrative command of ships and establishments within the Atlantic and Pacific Coast Commands. The Flag Officers in the Atlantic and Pacific Commands also hold the additional appointments of Maritime Commander Atlantic and Maritime Commander Pacific respectively. As such, each is responsible for anti-submarine operations involving RCN and RCAF forces in his command. The Naval Comptroller organization was established in 1956 to assist in the effective control of the use of manpower, material and financial resources of the Navy. The recruiting and training of officers and men of the Royal Canadian Navy (Reserve) is conducted mainly through 21 Naval Divisions across Canada under the overall command of the Commanding Officer, Naval Divisions, with Headquarters at Hamilton, Ont. There are naval missions in London, England, and Washington, U.S.A., to maintain liaison with the Royal Navy and the United States Navy. As a result of Canada's NATO commitments, officers of the Royal Canadian Navy serve on the Staffs of: the Supreme Allied Commander, Atlantic, at Norfolk, Va., in the United States; the Commander-in-Chief, Eastern Atlantic Area, at Northwood in the United Kingdom; and the Commander-in-Chief, Western Atlantic Area, at Norfolk, Va. The Flag Officer, Atlantic Coast, holds the appointment of Commander, Canadian Atlantic Sub-Area.

The strength of the RCN on March 31, 1960, was 20,675 officers and men in the Regular Force and 3,311 in the Reserve Force.

Operations at Sea, 1959—By the end of 1959 the Royal Canadian Navy had 62 warships in commission, and two Royal Navy submarines under its operational control. This compared with 47 ships in commission and six in refit at the end of 1958.

HMCS CAPE BRETON, the RCN's second mobile repair ship joined the fleet late in 1959.

On the Great Lakes, two frigates from the Atlantic Command provided sea training during the summer months for naval reservists from across Canada. More than 500 new entry seamen of the RCN (Reserve) passed through the Great Lakes Training Centre, at Hamilton, Ont., during the peak months of July and August.

In 1959 two Algerine coastal escort ships were transferred to the Belgian Navy under terms of Mutual Aid.

The reserve fleet was reduced to five ships through disposal of surplus vessels and commissioning of others.

An announcement was made that a 22,000-ton tanker supply ship would be built for the RCN, and that the United States Navy submarine "Burrfish" would be obtained on loan for five years. The "Burrfish" is to be renamed "HMCS Grilse". Construction has also begun on six new "Repeat" Restigouche class destroyer escorts.

On May 4, 1960, the RCN marked its 50th anniversary of service to Canada. Throughout the year celebrations were held across Canada to mark the anniversary.

The opening of the St. Lawrence Seaway permitted major warships to enter the Great Lakes for the first time. RCN and USN ships escorted the Royal Yacht Britannia to the Lakes; eight RCN and 11 other NATO warships attended the Canadian National Exhibition.

Major shore training establishments are maintained at HMCS STADACONA, Halifax, N.S.; HMCS NADEN, Esquimalt, B.C.; HMCS CORNWALLIS near Digby, N.S.; and HMCS SHEARWATER near Dartmouth, N.S.

Trade and specialist training is conducted in various schools and training centres.

ROYAL CANADIAN SEA CADET CORPS

Admiral of the Sea Cadets, H.R.H. The Duke of Edinburgh

Organized December 16th, 1895 by the Navy League of Canada, Sea Cadet Corps were subsequently organized in various centres across Canada and, up to and including June 1st, 1941, these Cadet Services were operated by the Navy League in association with the Department of National Defence, Army. Following June 1st, 1941 this association was transferred to the Navy, since which time the Royal Canadian Navy has assumed the responsibility of certain jurisdiction, training and supervision of Sea Cadet Corps, and the operation of summer training camps, with the Navy League being responsible for administration and general operation of Corps and the providing of both summer camps and Corps training quarters.

THE ROYAL CANADIAN SEA CADETS

Royal Canadian Sea Cadets, sponsored by the Navy League of Canada and supervised by the Royal Canadian Navy, comprised 161 authorized corps in 1959. These were divided into seven Sea Cadets areas, supervised by 16 naval officers, responsible to the Commanding Officer, Naval Divisions. The strength of the Corps on December 31, 1959 was, 1,007 Sea Cadets officers and 9,189 Sea Cadets.

THE CANADIAN ARMY

ORGANIZATION

Army Headquarters at Ottawa, is organized into three separate Branches. The General Staff Branch deals with all matters affecting the fighting efficiency of the Army, the Adjutant-General Branch deals with all problems affecting the soldier as an individual and the Quartermaster-General Branch is responsible for the supply of the Army. The senior appointment at Army Headquarters is the Chief of the General Staff, who through the Heads of the three Branches directs all the activities of the Canadian Army.

For command and control, Canada is divided into four Commands and ten Areas each with its own headquarters.

The Canadian Army comprises the Canadian Army (Regular) and the Reserves. The Canadian Army (Regular) consists of four Infantry Brigade Groups and those units required for command and control, training, administration and logistic support.

The Reserves include the Canadian Army (Militia), the Regular Reserve, the Supplementary Reserve, the Canadian Officers' Training Corps, the Cadet Services of Canada and the Reserve Militia.

The strength of the Canadian Army (Regular), as of 31 Mar. '60 was 47,185 officers and men and the strength of the Canadian Army (Militia) was 40,010.

OPERATIONS

In fulfilment of our military obligation under the North Atlantic Treaty, Canada has continued to provide ground forces, one Infantry Brigade Group, for the defence of Western Europe. The Headquarters for the Brigade Group is at Soest.

Canadian membership in the International Supervisory Commissions of Viet Nam and Cambodia resulted in the Canadian Army providing 65 officers and men for Truce Supervisory duty in Indo China.

Canada, as a member of the United Nations, may be called to provide, at short notice, military forces for service under, or in support of, the United Nations. The Canadian Army provides 8 officers to the United Nations Military Observer Group in India and Pakistan and 18 officers to the United Nations Truce Supervision Organization in Palestine as well as contingents totalling 1150 officers and men to the United Nations Emergency Force in Egypt and the United Nations Force in the Congo.

The Canadian Army is responsible for the conduct of those aspects of National Survival and Civil Defence operations which were assigned to the Department of National Defence by the Civil Defence Order, PC 656/59.

EQUIPMENT

The Canadian Army Equipment Development

Program continues to concentrate on those fields particularly suited to Canadian capabilities and in which there are special Canadian needs. Canadian Army participation in materiel and non-materiel standardization programs with the United States, the United Kingdom and NATO continues. Additional agreements reached with allied armies affecting procedures and equipment enhanced their capability for cooperative operations.

A new sub-machine gun manufactured in Canada, the 9mm C1, is being issued to replace the World War II 9mm Sten sub-machine gun in the regular Army.

TRAINING

The policy of training is determined at Army Headquarters. General Officers Commanding Commands implement the training policy within their Commands, except for that conducted at Army and corps schools, which are under the direct supervision of Army Headquarters.

French- and English-language training which is available to all ranks of the Canadian Army was conducted by Commands and AHQ.

Trade and specialty training is given at corps schools and units. Where feasible, the facilities of civilian schools are used to supplement training at Army establishments.

The training of the Airborne/Air Transportable Elements of the Field Force (Canada) continued throughout 1960.

THE RESERVES

Funds were provided to permit an average of 40 days training for all ranks of the Militia during 1959, of which 7 days was for summer training by attachment to Regular Army units, camps or headquarters. In the summer of 1959 a total of 10,989, all ranks were attached for summer training.

THE REGULAR OFFICER TRAINING PLAN (ROTP)

The Regular Officer Training Plan is in effect at the three Canadian Services Colleges and at all Canadian universities and affiliated colleges which have contingents of the COTC. Training consists of military studies, drill and physical training during the academic year; the summer term is devoted to practical training at military establishments.

THE CANADIAN OFFICERS' TRAINING CORPS (COTC)

In addition to the Regular Officer Training Plan, units of the Canadian Officers' Training Corps are maintained at Canadian universities to produce officers for the reserve components of the Army. University graduates who have been members of the Canadian Officers' Training Corps are also eligible for commissions in the Canadian Army (Regular). Members of the COTC undertake the same training as members of the ROTP.

ROYAL CANADIAN ARMY CADETS

Colonel-in-Chief: The Prince Phillip, Duke of Edinburgh

Address—Directorate of Militia and Cadets, Army Headquarters, Ottawa, Ont.

The Army Cadet organization stems from the "Drill Associations" formed in Colleges and Schools during and after the American Civil War, 1861-1866. Such corps were first authorized by an Amendment to the Militia Act, dated 9th June, 1862.

In 1942, the Department of National Defence expanded the Army Cadet organization, regularized the training, clothing and equipment, and began affiliating corps with the Canadian Army Militia.

In 1956 the establishment for Army Cadets was raised to 75,000.

The strength of the Royal Canadian Army Cadets as of 31 March 1960 was 65,239, enrolled in 493 cadet corps.

Cadet summer camps are located at Aldershot, N.S., Farnham, P.Q., Camp Borden, Ont., Ipperwash, Ont., Clear Lake, Man., Dundurn, Sask., Banff, Alta., and Vernon, B.C.

THE DEFENCE RESEARCH BOARDS

The Defence Research Board was established on April 1, 1947 by an amendment to the National Defence Act.

The Board consists of a full time chairman and vice-chairman, five ex-officio members and nine appointed members. The ex-officio members are the Chiefs of Staff of the three Armed Services, the Deputy Minister of National Defence, the President of the National Research Council and a representative of the Department of Defence Production. The remaining members are selected from universities and industry because of their scientific and technical backgrounds appointed by the Governor in Council for three year terms. (For Officers see Index, Dept. of National Defence.)

The organization consists of Headquarters staff, an operational research group and nine field research stations and liaison offices at London, England, and Washington, U.S.A. Advisory committees assist the Board.

To assist co-ordination at the highest level the Chairman of the Board has the status of a Chief of Staff, and is a member of the Chiefs of Staff Committee and of the Defence Council. Thus the Defence Research Board has been described as a fourth service. Its fundamental purpose is to correlate special scientific requirements of the Armed Forces.

The activities of the Defence Research Board are concerned primarily with naval, armament, telecommunications, arctic, special weapons, operational, medical, aeronautical and materials research problems of specific interest to Canadian defence. To conduct this programme of research the Defence Research Board operates nine specialized research and development establishments.

Research on naval problems is carried out at the Naval Research Establishment, Dartmouth, Nova Scotia, and at the Pacific Naval Laboratory, Esquimalt, British Columbia. The principal emphasis at each station is on problems related to submarine detection and tracking.

Research and development of weapons and armament is undertaken by the Defence Research Board in co-operation with the Armed Services at various establishments.

Research on telecommunications is carried out in the Defence Research Telecommunications Establishment.

Research dealing with problems in arctic operations is conducted at the Defence Research Northern Laboratory, Fort Churchill, Manitoba.

The Board continues to support those fields of research which are of foremost interest to the Canadian Armed Services, and the programme is under continual review to ensure that cognizance is taken of all changes in emphasis in defence requirements.

Close liaison is maintained between the Defence Research Board and the Department of Defence Production to ensure that research and development activities are closely integrated with production.

THE ROYAL CANADIAN AIR FORCE

The Royal Canadian Air Force officially sets April 1, 1924, as its birthday. The foundations were laid during the First World War when nearly 22,000 Canadians flew as members of the British Air Forces.

Air Force Headquarters at Ottawa conducts the planning and policy administration and training of the Regular and Reserve Forces of the RCAF. Organization is divided into four categories—(a) Policy, Plans, Operations and Training (b) Logistics (c) Personnel (d) Management and Finance.

The Royal Canadian Air Force of to-day is administered by Air Force Headquarters at Ottawa through the following major formations: Air Defence Command, St. Hubert P.Q.; 5 Air Division, Vancouver, B.C.; 1 Air Division, Metz, France; Air Materiel Command, Rockcliffe, Ont.; Maritime Air Command, Halifax, N.S.; Air Transport Command, Trenton, Ont.; Training Command, Winnipeg, Man.

The role of the R.C.A.F. is to provide operational forces for:

- (a) The air defence of Canada;
- (b) Maritime defence, in conjunction with the R.C.N.
- (c) Canada's air force contribution to NATO forces in Europe;
- (d) Airlift and support for armed forces operations;
- (e) Air search and rescue and co-ordination of marine search and rescue in Canada and approaches thereto.

The organization included 29 flying squadrons of the RCAF Regular and 11 flying squadrons of the Reserve. The Reserve squadrons performed an emergency and rescue role. Nine of the Regular squadrons contributed to the air defence of the Canada-U.S. Region; 12 squadrons were assigned to the air defence of Western Europe; 4 squadrons were required for RCAF transport operations at home and abroad; 3 maritime squadrons operated in conjunction with other forces for the defence of Canada's East and West Coast; and one reconnaissance squadron carried out aerial photography and reconnaissance in the Canadian North.

The strength of the Royal Canadian Air Force on March 31, 1960 was 51,737 officers and men in the Regular Force and 3,792 in the Auxiliary Air Force.

Air Defence Command is now operating three radar systems as an integral part of North American Air Defence Command (NORAD). These three systems are the Distant Early Warning Line (DEW); the Mid Canada Line (MCL); and the Pinetree Line. The RCAF Ground Observer Corps, which acts as a supplement to the radar system, totals 2,500.

RCAF Reserve—The active sub-components of the RCAF reserves are designated as the Auxiliary and the Primary Reserve.

There are eleven Auxiliary Flying Squadrons. The squadrons are maintained to train a reserve of transport aircrew and operate in an emergency transport role. The RCAF maintains 13 Auxiliary Medical Units, 14 Aircraft Control and Warning Squadrons and 8 Technical Training Units.

ROYAL CANADIAN AIR CADETS

Air Cadet activities in Canada are sponsored and administered by the Air Cadet League of Canada. The League is a voluntary civilian organization created solely for this purpose and was formed in 1940 to provide preliminary aviation training for potential members of the Royal Canadian Air Force. In peacetime the object of Air Cadet training is to produce better citizens through air-age education. The Royal Canadian Air Force works jointly with the League and provides training personnel, syllabi and equipment.

During the war, the Royal Canadian Air Cadets reached a peak enrolment of 30,000. The newly authorized peacetime strength ceiling is 25,500 and the strength in Jan. 1960 was approximately 24,300 enrolled in 331 squadrons across Canada. Air Cadet Training is carried out in more than 230 communities, both large and small, from Newfoundland to British Columbia.

THE CANADIAN SERVICES COLLEGES

(For staff lists, see Index)

Royal Military College of Canada, Kingston, Ont.

Royal Roads, Victoria, B.C.

Collège Militaire Royal de Saint-Jean,
Saint-Jean, Que.

The Royal Military College of Canada was founded in 1876 at Kingston, Ont. Royal Roads was established in 1941 near Victoria, B.C., as a school for naval officers. In September, 1948, both Colleges were constituted as the Canadian Services Colleges to provide a joint educational and training program for the three Armed Forces of Canada. Collège Militaire Royal de Saint-Jean was opened in 1952 at Saint-Jean, Quebec, as the third member of the Canadian Services Colleges.

The role of the Canadian Services Colleges is to provide education and Service training for officer cadets to fit them to become commissioned officers, after graduation, in the Regular Forces of the Royal Canadian Navy, Canadian Army or the Royal Canadian Air Force. Courses of instruction are designed to develop character, to provide a balanced and liberal education leading to degrees in Arts, Science and Engineering which can be granted by the Royal Military College of Canada, and to provide a broad basic military education. The tri-service program at Royal Military College, Royal Roads and Collège Militaire Royal de Saint-Jean recognizes the fundamental qualities common to the training of officers whether for the Navy, Army, or Air Force, and thereby, seeks to weld a common understanding in matters of National defence.

On entry into one of the Canadian Services Colleges, applicants are enrolled as Regular Force subordinate officers in the Service of their selection. Provision is made for the entry of a limited number of Dominion Cadets, the sons of persons who were killed, died or are severely incapacitated as a result of service in a component of the Canadian Forces, or the Canadian Merchant Marine during hostilities. Dominion Cadets enter the Reserve Force of the Service of their choice and receive free tuition during their first academic year at a Service College. On graduation from the four year course, subordinate officers are promoted to Commissioned rank.

Educational requirements are senior matriculation for admission to the first year at all Royal Military Colleges of Canada and Royal Roads, and junior matriculation for entry to the preparatory year at Collège Militaire Royal de Saint-Jean.

Candidates must have reached their 16th, but not their 21st, birthday on the first day of January preceding entrance with the exception of junior matriculation candidates for Collège Militaire Royal de Saint-Jean who must have reached their 16th but not their 20th, birthday on the first day of January preceding entrance.

CANADIAN FLAGS AND BADGES

FLAG OF GOVERNOR GENERAL

In 1930 King George V approved the design of a Flag for the Governor General of Canada that would be symbolic of the position of the Governor General as the Sovereign's personal representative. The Flag so approved is of the following description: "On a blue field, the Royal Crest,—the Imperial Crown proper, thereon a lion statant-guardant or, 'crowned proper—subscribed 'CANADA' in black on a yellow scroll."

THE UNION FLAG

This flag may be flown on land by Canadian citizens. With the shield of the Provincial coat of arms it is the official flag of the Lieutenant-Governor of that province. The Union Flag may be flown on selected forts, armories, drill halls and other buildings occupied by the Canadian Army in Canada. (Refer also to paragraph "The Canadian Red Ensign"). The Union Flag is known generally as the "Union Jack".

THE CANADIAN RED ENSIGN

This flag, with the Shield of the Arms of the Dominion of Canada in the fly, was authorized by Admiralty Warrant of the 2nd February, 1892, to be flown by Canadian registered merchant vessels. Following the authorization of a new Coat of Arms for the Dominion of Canada in 1921, it was provided by Order in Council (P.C. 843, 26th April, 1922) that the Shield of the Arms of Canada appearing on the fly of the Canadian Red Ensign should be the Shield of the new Canadian Coat of Arms. In 1934, by Chapter 89 (1) of the Shipping Act, Chapter 44, Statutes of Canada, 1934, statutory provision was made for the flying of the Canadian Red Ensign on ships of Canadian registry.

The Canadian Red Ensign or the Union Flag (Jack) is flown at Army Headquarters, at selected forts, armories, drill halls and other buildings within commands at the discretion of the officer commanding the command, and by the Canadian Army when stationed outside of Canada. The use of the Union Jack should be the exception and not the rule.

At units, camps and stations, in Canada and the United States, where both the Stars and Stripes and the Canadian Red Ensign or Union Jack are flown, the Canadian Red Ensign or Union Jack should be half-masted on such occasions as the Stars and Stripes is half-masted.

The Canadian Red Ensign as a National Flag

By Order in Council (P.C. 134, 26th January, 1924) the display of the Canadian Red Ensign was authorized from "all buildings owned or occupied by the Canadian Government and situated without Canada."

On Sept. 5, 1945, Order in Council P.C. 5888 was issued as follows:

"That, until such time as action is taken by Parliament for the formal adoption of a national flag, it is desirable to authorize the flying of the Canadian Red

Ensign on Federal government buildings within as well as without Canada, and to remove any doubt as to the propriety of flying the Canadian Red Ensign wherever place or occasion may make it desirable to fly a distinctive Canadian flag;

"Therefore, His Excellency the Governor General in Council, on the recommendation of the Prime Minister, is pleased to order and doth hereby order that the Red Ensign with the shield of the Coat of Arms of Canada in the fly (hereinafter referred to as "the Canadian Red Ensign") may be flown from buildings owned or occupied by the Federal government within and without Canada.

"His Excellency in Council, on the same recommendation, is further pleased to declare and doth hereby declare that it shall be appropriate to fly the Canadian Red Ensign within and without Canada wherever place or occasion may make it desirable to fly a distinctive Canadian flag.

"Nothing herein shall be deemed to alter in any way the provisions now in force with respect to the flying of the Blue Ensign with the shield of the Coat of Arms of Canada in the fly on Canadian Naval vessels and other government vessels, nor with respect to the Flying of the Canadian Red Ensign on Canadian Merchant vessels."

THE CANADIAN BLUE ENSIGN

This flag, with the Shield of the Arms of the Dominion of Canada in the fly, is used on the Jack staff of all ships and vessels of the Royal Canadian Navy and has also been adopted as the official flag for vessels in the Canadian Government Service. Ships operated by provincial government departments, ships and yachts attached to Royal Yacht Clubs in Canada, and merchant ships carrying a specified number of naval reservists as part crew, may wear the Canadian Blue Ensign on authority of a Warrant to do so, issued by the Minister of National Defence.

WHITE ENSIGN

Under agreements made between the Canadian Government and the Government of the United Kingdom at the Imperial Conference 1911, Ships of War of the Dominion of Canada hoist at the stern the White Ensign as a symbol of the authority of the Crown.

NAVAL BOARD FLAG

In 1943, approval was given to a flag to be flown by the Naval Board of Canada. The design is: The Admiralty anchor in gold in the centre of the flag, on red and blue, bisected diagonally with the blue portion nearest the staff, and the red portion uppermost. The flag may be flown both day and night from Naval Headquarters and shall be flown both day and night in H.M.C. ships and establishments when (i) two or more members are present in their official capacities, or (ii) His Excellency The Governor General of Canada is embarked.

This flag, if flown at Naval Headquarters, shall only be struck at Naval Headquarters when the Board as a whole is absent.

THE R.C.A.F. ENSIGN

This was approved by King George VI, July 5, 1940. The flag is light blue. In the upper quarter next to the flagstaff the Union Jack and in the centre of the fly two roundels, white upon dark blue, and upon the centre of the white roundel a red maple leaf. Royal Canadian Air Force Orders provide that the Royal Canadian Air Force Ensign is to be flown daily at all Royal Canadian Air Force formations, units and detachments.

THE ROYAL CANADIAN NAVAL BADGE

It consists of an oval-shaped shield of deep blue upon which is a fouled anchor in gold. The shield is encircled by a wreath of ten golden maple leaves, five on each side, and is surmounted by the Royal Crown, of St. Edward's design.

THE CANADIAN ARMY BADGE

This badge was approved in 1947 by King George VI. It is for the use of the Canadian Army as a whole and has replaced the Coat of Arms on army stationery, publications, etc. The following is a description of the approved design: It consists of three hard red maple leaves, conjoined on one stem, upon two crusader's swords, points upwards, blades in natural colour, i.e. blue, and grips, guards and pommels in gold. Above, is the Crown properly coloured. In accordance with the wish of Her Majesty the Queen, the Crown was changed in 1954 from the "Tudor" design to the "St. Edward's" design.

THE R.C.A.F. GENERAL BADGE

This was approved by King George VI in February, 1943. The official description of the badge is: within a dark blue circular band edged with gold and inscribed in gold the motto "PER ARDUA AD ASTRA," a light blue roundel. In front of the whole a gold eagle flying forward with head lowered and to its left with wings extended beyond the circular band. Beneath, a dark blue riband edged gold and inscribed in gold with the words "ROYAL CANADIAN AIR FORCE." The whole is surmounted with the Royal Crown, of St. Edward's design.

NOVA SCOTIA FLAG

The official flag of the province of Nova Scotia is the blue cross of St. Andrew on a white field, with the Royal Lion mounted thereon. The flag was originally authorized by Charles I in 1625. In 1929, on petition of Nova Scotia, a Royal Warrant of King George V was issued, revoking the modern Arms and ordering that the original Arms granted by King Charles I be borne upon shields, banners and otherwise according to the laws of Arms. Since that time, the Nova Scotia Flag has been in continual use.

PROVINCE OF QUEBEC FLAG

The official flag of the Province of Quebec was adopted by a Provincial Order-in-Council No. 72 on January 1, 1948. The flag thus adopted is generally known as the "fleurdelisé" flag. It is a white cross on a sky blue ground, with the fleur-de-lis in an upright position on the blue ground in each of the four corners of the flag.
